CITIZENS WAIT IN DOUBLE LINE TO SEE HOOVER

President Shakes Hands With 6,348 During New Years Reception.

EXECUTIVE GREETS OFFICIALDOM FIRST

Largest Throng at White House Since Regime of Roosevelt.

QUEUE IS STARTED IN EARLY MORNING

Ceremony Continues Until 3:30 o'Clock, When 200 Are Turned Away.

A total of 6,348 men, women and children clasped the hand of President Hoover yesterday in the largest New Year's reception the White House has seen since the Roosevelt regime, when the average reception throng numbered between 6,000 and 8,000 persons.

Strangers in town might easily have been pardoned for thinking it was the Fourth of July, or Easter at least, if they took the thermometer as their indicator. While the temperature broke no records yesterday, the mercury did climb to 58 degrees between 3 and 4 o'clock, which was quite a bit higher than the New Year's average of 42 degrees in past years.

Starting promptly at 11 o'clock, President Hoover extended the greetings of the season to members of his Cabinet, the judiciary, members of Congress and other officials of the Government and high officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps, these groups, by their unusually large numbers, running almost half an hour over the time allotted to them, so that it was 12:30 o'clock before the President could take time out to grab a sandwich and a cup of coffee and be back on the line to start greeting Mr. and Mrs. John Q. Public promptly at 1 o'clock.

Record Holder Appears.

The general line started to form at the north entrance of the White House at 8 o'clock yesterday morning, when J. W. Hunefeld, of 225 C street northeast, constituted himself the head of the column. Mr. Hunefeld holds something of a record for greeting the President on New Year's Day, having been first in line every year since 1926, save for one occasion when he was delayed in traffic, in 1927, and found two others had superseded him.

Mr. Hunefeld, however, was not the first to shake hands with Mr. Hoover yesterday, courteously conceding that honor to Mrs. George A. Barrett, of 1819 Kalorama road northwest, who arrived to take her place on the line of a few minutes after 8 o'clock.

Third to shake the hand of the President in the afternoon reception was pretty little Jean Hughes, 10 years old, whose mother had brought her all the way from Pittsburgh just for the occasion.

The line did not begin to form in appreciable magnitude until about 10 o'clock, but long before noon there were several thousand persons waiting for the signal to start the march through the Executive Mansion, where they shook hands with the President at a rate sometimes exceeding 40 a minute.

200 Turned Away.

Everyone in line up until the tail end was within the gates at 3:30 was received by the President, who stood by his task constantly except for a brief breathing spell of about ten minutes shortly before 3 o'clock. However, no sooner had the last of the line passed through the doors of the White House than a new line began to form, made up of late comers who apparently had planned to delay their arrival in order to avoid the tedium of standing in line. They were disappointed, however, as members of the President's staff refused to recall him, and about 200 thus were turned away.

Possibly the weather created an inspiring influence, and undoubtedly the outlook for prosperity had considerable to do with it, but whatever the reason, everyone was happy. The thousands who came to pay their respects to the President and Mrs. Hoover were obviously joyful, and

MYSTERY SHROUDS MOTIVE AND IDENTITY OF MURDERER

Fatal "Present" Addressed to Naomi Hall Brady, Secretely Married in June, Was Left at Door of Neighbor and Carried Home by Her Brother.

A bomb, laden with hate and dynamite and camouflaged as a Christmas present, killed a young bride and injured six members of her family in Seat Pleasant, Md., suburb of Washington, yesterday morning.

So far as is known, the family had no violent enemies, and last night police were stumped in their search for the author of the New Year outrage.

The victims were:

Mrs. Naomi Hall Brady, 18, bride of a few months and an expectant mother, who was terribly mutilated and died at Casualty Hospital.

Mrs. Nora Hall, 45, her mother, who lost her eye and suffered abdominal injuries and who is expected to die.

Leslie Hall, 16, who suffered the loss of two fingers and a cut over the right eye.

Mrs. Margaret Bromley, 86, mother of Mrs. Hall, concussion of the brain and shock.

Thomas Hall, 8, severe lacerations of the hands.

Dorothy Hall, 4, injuries to the head, face, shoulder and body.

Samuel Hall, 19 months, injuries similar to those suffered by Dorothy.

Three Members of Family Escape Injury.

Three members of the family escaped injury—John S. Hall, the father, a grave digger at Mount Olivet Cemetery, who was at work; his son, Norris Hall, 20, who was also at work, and another son, Roger, 13, who also was out at the time.

The "Christmas present," which was addressed to the young woman who was killed, was opened by Mrs. Hall in the kitchen of their white frame house in Carmody road, after it had been sent there by a neighbor, on whose doorstep it had been left. Grouped around Mrs. Hall were her children, eager-eyed and laughing.

Looking at the box, they judged that it contained candy, and they were prepared for a feast.

Trigger Arrangement Explodes Dynamite.

The box evidently contained a trigger arrangement, timed to explode the dynamite when the lid was removed. As Mrs. Hall lifted the lid, there was a terrific explosion that could be heard for a mile.

The occupants of the kitchen were hurled in every direction, the sink was torn from the wall, the floor was torn up, and several windows were shattered.

There was one eyewitness, Steuart Carneal, 12, a playmate of Leslie Hall, who was standing on the back porch when the blast occurred. He, too, should be added to the casualty list, for he suffered a cut over his left eye.

Brother Carries Bomb Home.

The Carneal boy and Leslie Hall had been to the shoemaker's to get Leslie's shoes. On the way back, Mrs. John Buckley, who lives on Carmody street, a short distance from the Hall house, called the two boys.

She explained to young Hall that on Sunday morning she had found a package on her doorstep, addressed to his sister, Naomi Hall Brady, but had not had time to take it to her.

The package, the sort that might contain candy and nuts, was wrapped in brown paper and bore various yuletide emblems. In ink was written, "Naomi Hall, Second house on Carmody road."

Leslie Hall took the package from Mrs. Buckley and started on a run for his house, the Carneal lad trotting alongside.

Rattling Noise Heard.

"I heard a rattling sound in the box while we were running," Carneal told reporters. "Leslie took it into the house, and I went to the back porch."

There he went to the window, and watched as Mrs. Hall, her children gathered around her, opened the package.

"There was an awful 'bang'!, and

Pitt Eleven Crushed By Trojans, 47 to 14

Southern California Backs Run Wild in Rose Bowl Before 70,000 to Rout Eastern Champions—Tear Panthers' Defense to Shreds.

By RUSSELL J. NEWLAND.

Rose Bowl, Pasadena, Calif., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Crashing, swirling giants of the University of Southern California, who asked no quarter and yielded none, ripped and tore a Pittsburgh Panther defense to shreds here today to rout the previously undefeated mythical football champions of the East, 47 to 14, in the Tournament of Roses clash—the most decisive beating taken by a losing team since this classic was established fourteen years ago.

The great intersectional struggle that annually heralds the New Year in this far-off corner of the Nation saw a Pittsburgh eleven that packed four men on all-American teams this past season completely outclassed from opening kick-off to closing gun.

All the vaunted power of the Panther team that brought it nine straight victories during the year of 1929 went for naught against a Trojan offensive that brushed everything before it.

The game had barely gotten under way when Southern California cleats dug their first message in the turf behind the Pittsburgh goal line. Six times again in the ensuing 54 minutes of play Trojan toters of the ball explored the ground where points are found.

By land and air the young gridiron warriors who fight for the Cardinal and Gold of Southern California forced their way down the field, while some 70,000 spectators were thrilled by the most dazzling conquest this historic bowl has ever yielded from its depths.

Only twice was the Pitt drive in evidence and on those occasions touchdowns resulted. Outfought, outpassed and thoroughly outclassed in

Employe of Tiffany's for Many Years Reenters Burning Home.

GRANDSONS ARE RESCUED

Hackensack, N. J., Jan. 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Reentering his burning home in North Hackensack, after carrying his two small grandsons to safety, Leonard Kirby, 61, an employe of Tiffany's, New York, was burned to death early today with his wife, Elizabeth, 60, whom he also had sought to rescue.

The boys, Leonard 3d, 11, and Richard, 9, who were passing the holidays with their grandparents, were awakened by the fire shortly after 4 o'clock and began to cry. Their screams aroused Mr. Kirby, who carried them from their bedroom and through a window to the roof of the front porch, where they were helped down a few minutes later by passersby.

Returning to help his wife, whom it is believed he found unconscious in their bedroom on the second floor, Mr. Kirby also was overcome as he was carrying her from the house. Their bodies were found together only a few feets from a window when firemen, who were held back by the intense heat of the blaze, finally were able to enter.

The fire was discovered by Fred Rosemon, 17, of New York, who was on his way to the home of August Block, a neighbor of the Kirbys. Calling to Percy Hahn, manager of a gasoline filling station nearby, to telephone the alarm, Rosemon ran to the burning house and found the two children on the porch roof, crying for help.

Reaching their side by climbing a drain pipe, Rosemon lowered the boys into the arms of Charles Thompson, a former Hackensack High School football star, and then jumped down himself just as the flames burst through the front of the house.

When the frightened children had been calmed by neighbors they were found to be unharmed. The fire, which swept through the entire interior of the two-story stucco house, is believed to have started from a defective furnace flue.

Mr. Kirby had been with Tiffany's for many years and was socially prominent in this city. Mrs. Kirby was a member of one of Hackensack's oldest families. She was the aunt of Commander Kent Hewitt, U. S. N., of Newport, R. I.

Dry Law Merit Talks Get Crime Group Ban

Hoover's Enforcement Commission Accepts Statute as Part of Constitution and Plans Ways and Means to Make It Effective.

(Associated Press.)

After conferences with President Hoover's Law Enforcement Commission, Senator Jones, of Washington, divulged last night that it had decided unanimously to refrain from passing judgment on the merits of the prohibition amendment.

The Washington senator, who is assistant Republican floor leader and author of the stringent Jones act heavily penalizing Volstead violators, said in a statement that the commission will conclude its work before July 1st.

He termed the industrial alcohol situation the "most difficult" problem confronting prohibition enforcement in the eyes of the commission. He passed the word yesterday to the commission to "shield no individual and no line of business" in solving this situation.

The statement of Senator Jones, who has been conferring with the commission and with President Hoover during the holiday outburst among prohibitionists over the Hoover enforcement machinery, was eagerly awaited in the Capitol.

"I find that an important report already has been given to the President," said the senator. "It will be submitted to the congressional committee sought by the President as soon as created and ready for work. Other reports will be ready soon.

"All seem to view the industrial alcohol situation as the most difficult one to solve properly, as well as one of the most important phases of prohibition enforcement. In working this out the commission should shield no individual and no line of business.

"I am glad to learn that the commission is unanimous that the wisdom or unwisdom of the eighteenth amendment is not involved in their work; that it is a part of the Constitution and that the function of the commission is to devise the best means possible for its enforcement."

Meanwhile President Hoover and Senator Borah, of Idaho, who has demanded a clean-up of the enforcement personnel from top to bottom, continued to be silent on the situation. If they were writing any more letters it was not known, nor were the details disclosed of their recent exchange of correspondence concerning enforcement conditions.

The President is on record in a statement by Senator Jones that he will remove any Government official unfaithful to his trust of enforcing the law. Senator Borah is on record as believing the administration of industrial alcohol permits to be a "scandal," and that "open saloons" are running in the realm of many district attorneys throughout the country.

Senator Jones, in his New Year's Day statement, said the commission had divided its work into two phases—prohibition enforcement and law enforcement generally, "with several problems in each phase."

"Prohibition enforcement," said Senator Jones, "is of vital and immediate concern to the people. It was stated on the floor of the Senate a short time ago that a member of the a flash," Carneal said. "I hollered and ran."

Hearing the explosion, members of the Seat Pleasant Volunteer Fire Department hurried to the scene, and a little later came the rescue squad from Boulevard Heights.

Fabian L. Augustine, of the rescue squad, was the first man to enter the house. He found Mrs. Brady, the bride, on the floor, her breast torn off and covered with blood. The others were lying about her, unconscious.

Neighbor Becomes Hysterical.

Augustine got the others out, then wrapped Mrs. Brady in a quilt and placed her in a fire department hose cart. This sped for Washington. Police here had so arranged the traffic lights as to give it the right of way to the hospital. The other victims were brought to local hospitals by neighbors.

When Mrs. Buckley, who had harbored the package of dynamite for three days, heard what happened, she became hysterical.

Herman Brady, 22-year-old farmer of Mitchellville, Md., the husband of the girl who was killed, was negotiating for a place to set up housekeeping when he heard of the tragedy.

Marriage Had Been Secret.

His grief was so great last night that he was barely able to talk. His romance with Naomi had begun in childhood, when she was 9 years old and attending school with him. It flowered last June when they married in Fairfax, Va.

Naomi kept the news from her mother until the day before Christmas. The mother was said yesterday to be considerably upset about it.

When asked last night whether he had any enemies, Brady hesitated for a while and then admitted he had one.

"He has not spoken to me for a long time now," Brady said. "Why? Because I am a Catholic and because I got married."

Note Sent Through Mails.

"Do you think he might have prepared the bomb?"

"No," Brady said. "I don't think he would have intelligence enough to fix up a thing like that."

Postal Inspector John H. Collier, who went to the scene thinking that the bomb had been sent through the mails, and Lieut. Joseph Morgan, chief of the Washington homicide squad, agreed that the bomb was composed of dynamite. They explained that this was evidenced by the downward force of the explosion.

Lieut. Morgan was accompanied to the scene of the blast by Headquarters Detective Sweeney, Fowler and Wilson.

All Clews End Blindly.

County Policeman Frank Prince was conducting the investigation from the Seat Pleasant angle. He spent the day running down clews that in every case were false.

One report had it that a part of the wrapper on the package had been found, and that it bore handwriting. Prince denied this, and said that only a small piece of the box had been found.

There also was a report that a Washington policeman named Miller had seen somebody go up to the Buckley home Saturday night and leave a package, but this, too, proved to be untrue.

Prince did gather up a number of nails which the bomb had contained, hoping that they might be of some use in the investigation.

Bore Ambiguous Address.

There is good reason to believe that the person who perpetrated the crime hired somebody to deliver the bomb. Had the criminal himself delivered it, police reasoned, he would hardly have left it at the wrong house.

It was addressed to the "second house on Carmody road." This could mean either the Hall house or the Buckley house. The Hall house is the second on the right side of the road and the Buckley house the second on the left.

Family Recent Arrivals.

The family of John Hall moved into the Seat Pleasant house only a few weeks ago. They came from Woodmoor, Md., where, according to their friends, they were well liked.

Mrs. Hall had been preparing the New Year dinner when she halted yesterday to open the box that was to wreak such havoc in her home. Afterward two chickens which were to have been the piece de resistance of the meal, were found on the stove, unharmed except for a covering of dust.

In the shambles also was found a little doll, its head and an arm blown off.

In the front room stood a Christmas tree around which the family had gathered a week before to exchange presents. Here the police questioned all those who might be able to help them in their investigation.

Brother-in-Law Well Liked.

Lieut. Morgan talked at length with Norris Hall, the eldest son, who was out when the explosion occurred.

The youth, who is employed at the Cities Service Gas Station at Twenty-fourth street and Benning road northeast, told Morgan that his brother-in-law, Brady, was well-liked by the members of the family, and that there had been no opposition to the marriage.

The victims of the blast were brought to three local hospitals. Mrs. Brady and her grandmother, Mrs. Bromley, were brought to Casualty; Mrs. Hall and her sons, Leslie and Thomas, to Providence, and Dorothy and the baby, Samuel, to Sibley.

The physicians at Casualty, Louis Jimal and Rogers J. Young, said that Mrs. Brady died twenty minutes after her mutilated body arrived there.

Husband Arrives Too Late.

When her husband arrived, after a wild ride into the city, he found her dead. On his way in his automobile broke down and he had to ask a ride for the remainder of the way.

The elder Hall, who was at work at Mount Olivet when he heard the news, first went to Casualty. At that time he was under the impression that his wife had been killed.

They would not let him see his daughter or his mother-in-law, and then, a pathetic figure, he hurried to Sibley Hospital, where his two children, Dorothy and Samuel, were being treated.

From there he went to Providence Hospital. Here were his wife and the two children, Leslie and Thomas.

Paper Embedded in Bodies.

Physicians who examined Dorothy and Samuel at Sibley Hospital said that they found bits of brown paper embedded in their bodies. This evidently was the paper in which the "Christmas package" had been wrapped.

Mrs. Emma Sweeney, a sister of Mrs. Hall, lives across the street from Providence Hospital, at 425 Second street southeast. She declared that the Halls were a "quiet" family, and she could ascribe no reason for anybody trying to annihilate them.

CRAIN WILL REVIEW ROTHSTEIN MURDER

Investigation of Gambler's Slaying First Task of New Prosecutor.

PRESS POLICY OUTLINED

New York, Jan. 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—The Rothstein murder will be the subject of the first investigation by the New York district attorney of New York County, Thomas C. T. Crain, former Supreme Court justice, when he assumes the active duties of his office tomorrow morning.

Mr. Crain made this announcement today after he had stood in a bower of varicolored roses in his offices and addressed the members of his professional staff, including seven new appointees. He also spoke of changes he had decided on for the conduct of his office.

In referring to the murder of the Broadway gambler he stated he would begin his investigation by a study of all the records in the case in the district attorney's office, as well as court records of the McManus trial. He admitted, however, that before resuming office he had not obtained any evidence in the number other than that uncovered by the police and his predecessor, Joab H. Banton.

New Policy Is Outlined.

Mr. Crain also let it be known that the secrecy which appeared to encompass the district attorney's office during the eight years tenure of his predecessor had been dispelled by him.

"I shall reveal to the public all that can safely be told about any case brought to the office without jeopardizing the State's case," he said. He also declared that to avoid misunderstanding in connection with evidence he had obtained a new case he would confide the true situation to reporters, but placing on them the injunction not to publish such information.

"The reporters can see me at any time," he declared.

Hoovers at New Year Reception Hear Greetings Spoken in Many Languages

Mrs. Longworth and Mrs. Gann Hold Animated Conversation.

By JEAN ELIOT.

Washington has the gift of tongues when it comes to saying "Happy New Year," with representatives of half a hundred nations involved in the official celebration of the holiday. The entire Diplomatic Corps assembled at the White House yesterday morning, in ceremonial dress, for the President and Mrs. Hoover's first New Year reception; and, immediately after they had been received, greetings were extended to the Supreme Court, delegations from the Senate and the House, groups from all the executive, legislative and judicial branches of the Government, hundreds of Army, Navy and Marine officers, all in uniform, and representatives of patriotic organizations.

As the first of the annual grist of state functions at the White House in the Hoover Administration, since the diplomatic reception and the Cabinet dinner had been postponed because of official mourning, there was special interest in this reception, which has been an institution almost since the birth of the Republic and which is typically American in its spirit, with rich and poor, high and low having equal opportunity to offer greetings to the President and the First Lady.

Moreover, there was much curiosity as to whether or not there would be innovations in routine. The President and Mrs. Hoover, however, had arranged the fete in traditional manner.

The Marine Band, scarlet coated and stationed in its accustomed place, played the familiar "Hail to the Chief," following the usual fanfare of trumpets, as the President and Mrs. Hoover appeared at the foot of the stairway. Behind them came Vice President Curtis, with his sister, Mrs. Gann on his arm, and then the Cabinet members and their wives, in the accustomed order of precedence.

Mellon Among Absentees.

With Secretary Mellon, of the Treasury still on his holiday cruise to the Bahamas, there were all new faces in this group except for the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis, with eight years of service in the Coolidge Cabinet behind them. Mrs. Brown, wife of the Postmaster General, was an absentee, having been called out of town by the illness of her mother, but Postmaster General Brown had his place in the line and the others were all present—the Secretary of State and Mrs. Stimson, the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley, the Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell, the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Lamont, and the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis.

When the President and Mrs. Hoover had taken their places at the blue room door to greet their guests, presented alternately by Capt. Allen Buchanan and Col. Campbell Hodges, the "stately little cabinet procession" broke up into groups in the blue room, to which the chiefs of diplomatic missions, their wives and other dignitaries made their way once formal greetings were over.

Mrs. Hoover had chosen for her first White House reception a gown of powder blue moire, made with an uneven hemline and with a graceful fichu of lace finishing the V neckline. Her slippers were of black suede, worn with gunmetal hose. She wore no gloves and had a friendly handshake and a word of greeting to supplement the President's "Happy New Year."

Black and blue were the colors chosen by most of the women of the cabinet group, with velvet as the most favored material. Mrs. Gann's gown of black crepe opened over an underrobe of oyster white elaborately embroidered and she had chosen a most becoming black tricorne hat, with a pointed fox scarf to complete her costume. Mrs. Stimson's costume of black velvet was worn with a black hat and sables.

Mrs. Hurley In Black.

Mrs. Hurley also wore black velvet, a redingote model with the front, from throat to hem, of Alencon lace. Her hat was of black velvet. Mrs. Lamont's black gown was starred with golden polka dots and her black hat was faced with rose. Mrs. Hyde had chosen an afternoon costume of tete de negre velvet, with matching hat, and Mrs. Mitchell, Mrs. Adams, Mrs. Wilbur and Mrs. Lamont wore varying shades of blue. Mrs. Wilbur's sapphire velvet ensemble was trimmed in gray fur used diagonally across the hem of the coat and on the collar. Mrs. Adams wore dark blue velvet, with a matching hat, and Mrs. Davis, blue flat crepe, made on graceful lines, with a felt hat of exactly the same sapphire shade. Mrs. Mitchell's costume of dark blue chiffon, brocaded in velvet, was supplemented with a blue hat trimmed in leaves outlined in gold.

Marshalling the entire British Embassy group for presentation to the President, the British Ambassador, Sir Esme Howard, as dean of the corps, led the long line of foreign dignitaries—for the last time. His retirement from the service in February will be followed immediately by his departure from Washington.

The groups from Peru, Mexico, and Italy followed next, with lively guesses as to which ambassador of the three would be the next dean. Senor Don Hernan Velarde, Ambassador of Peru, is in line for the honor, which goes automatically to the envoy who has had the longest continuous service in Washington. But his detachment from his present post has already been announced and it is a question as to whether or not he will linger after Sir Esme Howard goes. Senor Don Manuel Tellez, Ambassador of Mexico, comes next, and after him Nobil Giocomo de Martino, Ambassador of Italy. But with the new administration in Mexico, a shake-up among her diplomats may come at any time and correspondents at Rome have long been predicting the retirement of Signor de Martino, who wishes to return to private life after many years of service.

Since the last New Year reception one new nation, the Union of South Africa, has been added to those maintaining friendly relations with the United States and its Minister, Mr. Eric Hendrick Louw, with charming Mrs. Louw, was conspicuous in the diplomatic group. New Ministers from Poland, Roumania and Jugoslavia have been received in the last 12 months.

Envoy Wears Scarlet Coat.

Peculiarly picturesque figures in the diplomatic group were the Minister of Denmark, Mr. Constantin Brun, in his scarlet coat; the Minister of Hungary, Count Szechenyi, wearing a dashing uniform, with a short cloak flung over one shoulder and a tall white aigret in his hat; the Minister of Siam, Maj. Gen. Prince Amoradsat Kridakara, in gala uniform of white coat and dark trousers, and the groups from Persia and Egypt wearing the tarboosh and the fez.

Mme. Wu, wife of the Minister of China, was a charming and colorful figure in black silk robes brilliantly embroidered in colors. With Dr. and Mme. Wu were their three young daughters, in native dress, and the other ladies of the Chinese group also brought the picturesque Oriental note to the assemblage.

Lady Isabella Howard has chosen a black satin gown, with a black satin hat trimmed in silver. Donna Antonietta de Martino, wife of the Italian Ambassador, was one of the most distinguished figures at the reception, wearing a gown of deep purple velvet, with a narrow fichu of white lace and a chic purple hat.

Their court uniforms elaborately laced with gold, the British, French and Belgian ambassdors added to the colorful picture. Princess de Ligne, wife of Belgium's envoy, had on a graceful king's blue chiffon gown, trimmed in gold, with which she wore blue shoes and a becoming blue hat. With the Spanish Ambassador, Senor Don Alejandro Padilla, was his daughter, Miss Rosa Padilla, and a winsome debutante, Miss Loranda Prochnik, accompanied the Austrian Minister and Mme. Prochnik. She wore a smart wool ensemble of sage green, its jacket belted in and tied with gay little bows.

Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft were absentees, due to the death of his brother, Mr. Charles P. Taft, and were greatly missed. But one noted Justice and Mrs. Brandeis, who so seldom go about that their appearance was an event, with Justice and Mrs. Stone, Justice and Mrs. Butler, Justice Sanford and others of the group.

Children at Reception.

The Speaker and Mrs. Longworth led the congressional delegation, and afterward Mrs. Longworth was aided in animated and friendly converse with Mrs. Gann. Paulina had accompanied her parents to the White House doors but did not go in. There were, however, children with many of the official guests, and little Miss Gladys Crail, daughter of Representative and Mrs. Joe Crail, held an impromptu reception of her own.

Short skirts have not gone entirely out—witness the black velvet gown worn by Mrs. Longworth and the smart lipstick red crepe sponsored by Mme. Peter, wife of the Minister of Switzerland. Mrs. Longworth's hat was black, and she carried one of the large square bags which she always affects.

Mr. Allan Hoover seemed to be enjoying the festivities and among the young people noted were Mr. Charles Francis Adams, jr., and three of the tall young sons of Senator and Mrs. Hiram Bingham, one of whom had his pretty young wife with him. Accompanying Senator and Mrs. Bingham, this was a striking family group.

Representative Ruth Bryan Owen was the only member of the "feminine line" noted—very handsome in a black cloth ensemble, a scarf of the same material thrown about her throat, and a chic black felt hat. Others glimpsed in this great official assembly were Senator Arthur Capper, Senator and Mrs. Charles S. Deneen, Senator Tasker Oddie, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, Miss Vera Bloom, wearing an enchanting frock of lacquer red with a matching red hat; Commissioner Proctor Dougherty and Commissioner Sidney Taliaferro, Miss Anne Randolph, members of the President's "secretariat" and their wives, Gen. Charles P. Summerall, chief of staff, leading the military line; Admiral Charles F. Hughes, at the head of the Navy group; Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, with a monumental row of decorations on his breast and dear old Gen. John Clem, brave in the blue and gold of full dress uniform, whose military service began as a drummer boy in the Civil War.

Procedure Very Orderly.

The entire battery of White House aids was on duty and marshaled the great assemblage so that there was no hitch in the orderly procedure. In the green room Miss Mary Randolph was stationed, very charming in black velvet, to see that the chiefs of missions and other dignitaries were escorted to the blue room.

Scarlet poinsettias were the most striking feature of the decorations, filling the great Sevres vases in the East Room, the urns in niches on the stairway and growing in stone boxes in the corridors. Christmas wreaths and slim fir trees carried out the holiday suggestion and in the State dining room, where the diplomats assembled on arrival, stood a giant Christmas tree, the only one left of the several which had adorned the White House. It was decorated all in silver, with silver bells and wee white reindeer as the only ornaments. At the doorway of the blue room stood orderlies bearing the Stars and Stripes and the President's flag.

President, First Lady Thank Band for Music

After shaking the hands of 6,348 White House callers yesterday, President and Mrs. Hoover still were not too fatigued to stop and speak a kindly word of appreciation to members of the Marine Band who had played continuously from 11 o'clock in the morning until 3:30 in the afternoon.

At the conclusion of the reception the Chief Executive and the First Lady went to the entrance hall, where the band was divided into two groups which played alternately.

"Your music has been so nice. I hope all of you and your families will have a happy New Year," said Mrs. Hoover, while the President, too, thanked the musicians for their part in the success of the reception, which was the thirty-second such event participated in by Capt. Taylor Branson, leader of the band.

PRESIDENT SHAKES HANDS WITH 6,348 AT RECEPTION

Divided into two sections on opposite sides of the lobby, the Marine Band played continuously throughout the reception, beginning promptly at 11 o'clock when the strains of "Hail to the Chief" greeted Mr. and Mrs. Hoover, Vice President Curtis and his sister, Mrs. Everett Gann, as they came down the main stairway of the Executive Mansion, followed by Cabinet members and their wives.

President Greets Officials.

Led by Col. Campbell Hodges and Capt. Allan Buchanan, chief military and naval aid, respectively, President and Mrs. Hoover were escorted across the corridor to the Blue Room, where the reception started officially a moment later when the President greeted members of the Cabinet, the director of the budget and the Diplomatic Corps.

Sir Esme Howard, Ambassador of Great Britain, and Lady Howard, were the first of the foreign diplomatic representatives to pay their respects to the President and First Lady. Following the fourteen ambassadors in the Capital, next to be welcomed were the director general of the Pan-American Union and members of the judiciary. Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft were not present, however, owing to the death of Mr. Taft's brother.

Practically every member of Congress was in the morning line, which numbered almost 1,000 persons, including also practically every high department official, as well as officers of the military and naval forces of the rank of lieutenant colonel and commander or higher.

Indian Pays Call.

One feature which was obvious to casual observers who watched the steady stream of humanity that flowed through the White House all day was that long skirts have come back. The number of sidewalk-sweeping trains in evidence far exceeded the knee-length dresses that have dominated the mode ever since the war. For some unexplained reason, however, black seemed to be the prevailing color in the feminine attire that was worn at the reception.

Probably the most novel garb seen in the long line was that of an unidentified Indian who was among the first to be received in the afternoon. He wore high patent-leather boots, black trousers and a gorgeous swallow-tail evening coat, a flowered white waistcoat and a stiff-bosomed white shirt, offset by a flaming red necktie. He topped off this costume with a huge gray "10-gallon" cowboy hat.

The crowd was described by Irvin Hood Hoover, chief usher of the White House, who has been in charge of the details at all presidential receptions for 40 years and therefore ought to know, as one of the most orderly ever seen at a similar function. While the White House guards found it necessary to confiscate temporarily a vast number of cameras, satchels and other articles which are barred from the Executive Mansion, there were none of the customary agitators who so frequently attempt to picket such receptions with antigovernmental placards, nor was it necessary to remove a single person from the line under suspicion of any possible plot or intention to harm any member of the presidential family.

The New Year was celebrated quite generally, but quietly, throughout the city, with special entertainments and other functions provided by clubs and organizations, as well as with an appreciable revival of the ancient custom of paying New Year calls.

1930 Cocktail Appears.

Mrs. James M. Doran, wife of the prohibition commissioner, started the New Year by introducing another new type of beverage concocted of grape juice, pineapple juice, lime juice and ginger ale, with cut fruits and sprigs of mint floating on top. The mixture is to be served in cocktail glasses, but there its resemblance to the New Year's beverages of prohibition years stops short. Mrs. Doran served her "1930 cocktail," as she has named it, at a dinner party which she gave at the Cosmos Club on New Year's Eve and, according to all reports, not one of those who sampled it arose with a headache yesterday morning.

The Central Young Men's Christian Association was "at home" yesterday to hundreds of its members and friends, who were entertained by an all-day program of special indoor sports, movies, music, dancing and speaking.

Huston Thompson, president of the Y. M. C. A.; Leonard W. DeGast, its general secretary, and a committee of staff officials and hostesses received the guests and escorted them to the various departments, where contests, exhibitions, concerts and other events were held and refreshments served.

trying to do. The only people he was opposing were the British.

"Shearer was interfering with British propaganda and he was trying to prevent a repetition of what happened at the Washington Conference when Secretary Hughes refused to allow the State department to give out anything about the conference and Lord Riddell was taking advantage of the situation and giving out everything Great Britain's way.

"As for Shearer trying to influence the Geneva Conference, as he was charged, I don't see how he could possibly have influenced it 1 per cent. How could he influence it? He certainly wasn't allowed to speak at the conference and you can't very well bottonhole people like Admiral Lord Beatty in the corridor and say 'Look, here, now—'

"I first met Shearer three or four years ago and I have always admired him. When he gets excited he talks loud and all that, but far as I know, he has never lied to me and he certainly has a good headpiece. I never found anything against him at all.

Asked about the forthcoming naval conference at London, Admiral Fiske said:

"It is going to be the greatest game, played for the greatest stakes that the world has ever known, but I think they make a mistake in not having a naval officer on the United States delegation."

"But they are going to have naval advisors, aren't they?" he was asked.

"Advisors, hell. They won't take any advice from anybody. No more than they did at the Washington conference when the general board of the Navy advised them not to give up fortifying the Philippines. They agreed not to fortify them and now Japan can take the Philippines any time she wants to and we won't have a base in the East while Japan will have just another one."

"What is your opinion," he was asked, "on the London naval parley? Do you, as a naval officer, believe in the reduction of naval armaments?"

"I don't oppose the reduction of Naval armaments but you must remember that the first invention ever created was a weapon. I remember the years following The Civil War.

"There was a great deal more widespread belief that all war was over with than there is now. I think you will find that the European ruling classes are more opposed to the reduction of armaments than anybody else because they know that backward nations are always kept down by force, the same as the underworld in New York is kept down, and they realize that there are such nations as China, and India, and Russia."

Clinchfield Seeks To Curtail Service

Motor Bus Competition Is Cited as Reason in Virginia Petition.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Increased use of motor buses for public transportation and general ownership of automobiles are given as reasons in a petition of the Clinchfield Railroad Co., addressed to the Virginia State Corporation Commission, for discontinuance of two passenger trains operating between Erwin, Tenn., and Elkhorn City, Ky.

Four trains are now being run daily between the two points, two each way, and the railroad has asked the commission to decide which two should be discontinued. Schedules from Erwin to Elkhorn leave Erwin at 8:10 a. m. and 3:55 p. m., and from Elkhorn to Erwin at 6 a. m. and 2 p. m.

The petition, which has been set for hearing at 10 a. m. on January 23, says that "on account of the competition of motor buses and the use of private automobiles passenger business on the trains has fallen off so as to be practically negligible, and petitioner is now, and has been for some time, operating the trains at a great loss. The revenue from said trains has steadily declined for several years, and the petitioner believes it will continue to decline."

Baltimore Architect Kills Self With Pistol

Baltimore, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Theodore Wells Pietsch, architect and art patron, was found dead to day in a drafting room over the garage in the rear of his house in the Roland Park section of the city. Police said he had been shot through the head and been dead several hours.

Mr. Pietsch, besides having been architect for a number of prominent Baltimore buildings, had been active in civic affairs concerning art and was a member of the municipal art commission. After investigation, Coroner John Morrissey gave a verdict of suicide in Mr. Pietsch's death.

J. P. MORGAN YACHT PRESENTED TO U. S.

Corsair Will Be Used in Mapping Continental Shelf in Atlantic.

CRAFT TO BE RENAMED

United States, the first time being during the World War, when the vessel was tendered by Mr. Morgan and became an auxiliary.

The Corsair has had a romantic career, wandering upon the high seas seeking adventure.

As an out and out gift, the Oceanographer will come under Federal control and ownership as part of the permanent maritime equipment of the Department of Commerce and will be assigned to the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Mr. Morgan stipulates that it shall never be disposed of by the Government until it is scrapped.

This gift will save the Government the immediate expenditure of $450,000 for a new ship of similar type. The yacht is said to be in excellent condition. Minor repairs only will be necessary for several years.

The formal transfer of the Oceanographer to the flag of the Department of Commerce will take place at Tebo's Basin, New York, where Capt. F. L. Peacock, of the Coast and Geodetic Survey, will take command. The ceremonies will be simple and the ship will be taken immediately to Norfolk, Va., which has been designated by the Secretary of Commerce as the Oceanographer's home port.

A project now under way by the Coast and Geodetic Survey involves the recharting of the entire Atlantic and Gulf seaboard.

Charts of this shore—actually about 18,000 miles in length, in view of the many bays, points, indentations and off-lying islands—are based principally upon surveys made from 40 to 80 years ago. Some of the areas were never surveyed. Changes in the configuration of the sea bottom have made many apparently clear areas unsafe and have created many new dangers. If an erroneous chart is used, the vessel might deduce an incorrect position and be placed in jeopardy.

"The Morgan yacht," the department said today, "has been a credit to the best traditions of the sea. It has anchored in almost every port in the world. Mr. Morgan was always an ardent yachtsman and was never happier than when he could seclude himself upon the decks of the Corsair and wander into far places. It is fitting that this ship, a veteran of many years of cruising, should now spend her last years in helping man explore the depths of the deep waters where thrills are still to be found and strange places remain to be explored.

"The ship was built at Newburgh, N. Y., in 1899. Her gross tonnage is 1,136. She has a length of 270 feet and a beam of 23.3 feet. Quarters are provided for nine and officers and fifty-four men and the motive power is two triple expansion 4,500 horsepower engines. She is well adapted for the use to which she will be put and will meet the need for additional hydrographic work on the Atlantic Coast. After she is equipped with a fathometer, the radio-acoustic ranging apparatus and such other instruments as are required, she will be utilized this winter off the Pensacola entrance, Florida."

Jury Says Winchester Man's Death Accidental

Charles Town, W. Va., Jan. 1.—A coroner's jury empaneled at Summit Point yesterday in connection with the death of Ralph Strosnider, a Winchester, Va., bank clerk, who was killed while handling a pistol he took from his automobile at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James W. Marshall late Monday evening, rendered a verdict of accidental death.

It took the jury only a few minutes to reach their verdict. The hearing was conducted by Justice Clipp, of Charles Town.

DISTRICT ATTORNEY OUSTER DEMANDED

TOWN DESOLATE, CLAIM

Austin, Tex., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—O. W. Killam and Hal Brennan, representing Laredo business men who are seeking removal from office of District Attorney John Valls, arrived here today to confer with Gov. Dan Moody.

Killam received a telegram announcing the Texas-Mexican Railway Company shops at Laredo had been closed. He said he believed the shops were closed because discontinuance of the Mexican Consulate at Laredo and application of new custom rates would cut down traffic through the port of Laredo.

Killam and Brennan said Gov. Moody could effect Vall's removal from office by recalling his appointment to the district attorneyship and sending another name to the Senate for confirmation. Valls was appointed during a recess of the Legislature.

Grounds For Demand.

Pat Dougherty, the governor's confidential secretary, said Gov. Moody would be available later "to hear what the Laredo delegation has to say."

One group of Laredo business men has sought Valls' resignation on grounds that his threats to arrest Gen. Plutarco Elias Calles, former president of Mexico, on an old murder conspiracy charge, led the Mexican government to close the Consulate at Laredo and brought on a crisis in business affairs of the city.

Another group, including the established political order, has just as strenuously upheld Valls.

The two men painted a desolate picture of conditions in Laredo. Killam said the only possible outcomes were the district attorney's resignation or bankruptcy for the city.

Insurrection Is Threatened.

Brennan predicted open insurrection unless conditions were remedied. He pointed out that the Texas-Mexico shops had a $45,000 pay roll monthly. He said many other establishments would be forced to close, and 3,000 or 4,000 people would be made jobless.

The men said they had a petition, voluntarily signed by 1,800 persons.

Marlin, Tex., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Senator Tom Connally, of Texas, today dispatched a telegram to Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson protesting the action of the Mexican government in closing the Laredo consulate.

MUMMERS RESTAGE ANNUAL PROCESSION

Floats Represent Variety of Subjects as 10,000 March in Parade.

MILD WEATHER ENJOYED

Philadelphia, Jan. 1 (A.P.)—Laughter, applause and music replaced the din of traffic and the hustle of business in Broad street today when a fairy-like procession made up of nearly 10,000 Mummers, bedecked in a myriad of colors, welcomed the New Year.

Philadelphia's annual show went down in the records of King Momus as one of the most successful ever held here.

Jupiter Pluvius sent a slight drizzle for a few minutes, but old Momus laughed it off and gave thanks for a mild day.

Gem-studded trains of royalty and a galaxy of elaborately-clad figures which ran from the ridiculous to the sublime in mimicry made up the fancy section of the parade.

There were brilliant capes a hundred or more feet long, with towering headdress, borne by squads of pages. Shimmering lines of satin and tinsel depicted the comet and the rainbow, a merry-go-round, and what not. One cape was pink, cerise and gold creation of heavy satin arranged in six sections, with laced ribbons joining each section. It was covered with embroidered American Beauty Roses and glittering gold spangles and the canopy headdress was set with semi-precious stones and heavy metal spangles. Silver fringe finished the decorations.

Three hours elapsed before the final marchers had passed the judges' stand at City Hall.

One float showed "Art Shires, the fighting baseball player, in the ring with an opponent, "Conny" Mack was acting as referee. There was a float showing Byrd's ship leaving for the South Pole, a scene showing the icy regions he sailed and flew over, and another depicting the camp at the South Pole.

The stock market slump, "talking" movies, radio entertainers, and long skirt styles came in for their share of burlesque.

Horse Trainer Is Fined On Rum Driving Charge

Alexander Weir, a professional trainer of horses, was fined $130 yesterday by Judge Fred Gill, at Elkridge, Md., on a charge of reckless driving and driving while under the influence of liquor. Weir was arrested early yesterday by C. C. Sermon, of the Maryland State police, after his automobile had crashed into a telegraph pole and a tree. Wires on the pole were felled, causing an interruption of telegraphic services between Washington and Baltimore.

He was arrested on the Washington-Baltimore road near the Laurel substation of the Maryland State Police. He was pronounced under the influence of liquor by Dr. A. Brumbaugh, of Elkridge. Weir told the police that he was a trainer for the stables of J. J. Myers and the Winfrey brothers. He gave his address as New York City.

Young Carneal, the sole eyewitness of the catastrophe, emitted a yell and then ran down the road, his cheek bleeding where it had been struck by a piece of flying glass.

"There was an awful bang and then a lot of flames," he said. "I hollered and ran."

"Leslie Hall and I had been chopping wood together this morning. Leslie asked if I would go to the shoemaker's with him. He had left a pair of shoes to be half-soled. We went there and on the way back Mrs. Buckley called us. She told Leslie that she had found a package on her doorstep Sunday morning which was for Naomi, Leslie's married sister.

"She said she hadn't had time to bring it up. Leslie took the box and we started on a run for Leslie's home. I could hear the box rattling. Leslie went in the front door and I went around to the back porch."

Here the Carneal boy told how he stood watching Mrs. Hall open the box. He was confident that in a moment he was to hold layer upon layer of Christmas sweets. Then came the explosion. He did not stop running until he reached home.

Seeing blood streaming down his face, the parents took him to a physician who administered first aid.

Woman Is Killed By Boy With Rifle

Son of Milton J. Budlong Forgot He Had Left Shell in Weapon.

Seekonk, Mass., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Milton J. Budlong, jr., son of Milton J. Budlong, of Newport, R. I., accidentally shot and killed Miss Margaret A. Ahearn, 40, a housekeeper, today, with a .22-caliber repeating rifle he had been given for Christmas.

The boy, who had been practicing with the rifle in the yard of the home of Claude R. Branch, went into the house and playfully pointed the supposedly empty rifle at Miss Ahearn. He forgot that when he had removed the clip, one cartridge had been left in the chamber. He pulled the trigger. The shot entered Miss Ahearn's neck and she died within a few minutes.

Medical Examiner Jesse W Battershall, of North Attleboro, viewed the body and gave a verdict of accidental shooting, after he and State Detective Francis W. Clemley, of Taunton, had investigated.

Mr. Budlong, whose marital troubles were before the Rhode Island courts for years, had rented the Branch home in order that his two boys, both boarding school students, might have a suitable place to spend the Christmas holidays.

Herbert Hoover, Jr., Makes Debut as Magazine Writer

Before End of Year Department of Commerce Will Require All Passenger Planes to Have Radio, President's Son Predicts.

New York, Jan. 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Herbert Hoover, jr., radio technician of Western Air Express, Inc., makes his debut as a magazine writer and contributing editor of Aero Digest in the January issue of that publication. His first article in a promised series is entitled "The Function of Aircraft Radio," and predicts that before the end of the year the Department of Commerce, which his father once headed, will require all passenger and mail planes to be radio-equipped in the interests of increased safety.

After sketching the progress that has been made in wireless communication with planes in flight, he says:

"The Government has provided not only a weather collection and forecasting device on the ground, but also a Nation-wide system of voice broadcasting stations to give the information to planes while in flight and a series of radio beacons to guide them along the airways. All that is needed for their reception is a receiving set, a pair of head telephones and a short antenna.

"Under these circumstances there is not the slightest excuse for an airplane to get into trouble from lack of knowledge of ground weather conditions nor to stray unknowingly very far from an airway. Before the end of 1930 I should not be at all surprised to see the Department of Commerce require every passenger and mail ship to carry at least a receiving set and eventually all such private planes as it has control over, as well."

In another part of his article he says that "the general public is either going to make or break aviation" and that large-volume patronage of flying will not come, despite efficient operation and cheaper rates, until public confidence in air transportation has first been gained.

"Radio," he writes, "is eventually going to give to commercial air transportation just that added degree of positive safety and regularity of service which characterizes well-operated railroads. The transport companies are spending large amounts of time and money in developing two-way radio communication with their planes and in applying the latest devices for radio navigation." (This is young Hoover's specific job with Western Air Express.)

Peseta Decline Worries Spain.

Madrid, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Financial quarters are worried over the depreciation in the Spanish peseta, which in January, 1929, was being quoted at 29.77 for the pound sterling and at the end of December at 36.58. This loss is the highest since 1898, when the colonial wars ended.

24 Men Overcome By Seepage of Gas

Workers Had Been Boring Tunnel 40 Feet Underground.

Pittsburgh, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Twenty-four men were overcome today in a small building where they were preparing for work at the plant of the Duquesne Light Co on Brunot Island in the Ohio River, here. They were removed to a hospital, but company officials said none of them was in a serious condition.

Gas was believed to have seeped through the ground from a tunnel passing under the small structure where the men were changing their clothing, the company officials said. It was said that nearly all of the men were able to walk about after they were removed from the building.

The tunnel is being constructed 40 feet below the surface of the ground, and the company officials said they had not determined how the gas had escaped into the building above.

Train Crew Rum Party Kills Pair; Trio Is Ill

Lexington, Miss., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Two unidentified men are dead and Wallace Hudson, of Sherrod, Miss., was in a critical condition today as the aftermath of what Hudson described as a drinking party on a freight train passing through northern Mississippi.

Meanwhile, the condition of two others, likewise unidentified, who participated in the party was undetermined.

Physicians said the deaths and the illness of Hudson were caused by alcoholic poisoning.

EIELSON SEARCHER QUITS TO GET REST

Nome Awaits Planes as Frank Dorbandt Is Given Leave.

YOUNG STAYS AT TELLER

Nome, Alaska, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—With Frank Dorbandt, Alaskan airman, out of the search for Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, missing with their airplane, in the Arctic since November 9, Nome today awaited the arrival of two Fairchild cabin planes from Fairbanks.

Alfred J. Lomen, head of the searching expedition here, said Dorbandt had been given a leave of absence because of ill health. The flier has been working for practically nine months in the Arctic and the added strain of sitting idle while awaiting favorable weather to search for Eielson, a close friend, brought him to the verge of a nervous breakdown. He will not be needed with the Canadian airmen and others here and can have a rest that he deserves, Lomen said.

Although nothing had been heard from Fairbanks, Nome today was looking forward to the arrival of the Canadians who will continue the search for Eielson and Borland between Teller and North Cape, Siberia, where the fur-trading motorship Nanuk is frozen in the ice. Two of the Fairchilds were expected here today while a third was to fly tomorrow with Matt Niemenen at the controls.

L. Young remained at Teller awaiting fair weather to hop to the Nanuk. It was predicted at headquarters here that he would not get off before the Canadians arrive and then would pilot them across the Bering Strait to the ship.

At the Nanuk Joe Crosson and Harold Gillam were making repairs to Gillam's plane, the landing gear of which was damaged when Gillam was forced down after his engine stopped.

Little credit was given here to the theory that Eielson might have landed on Wrangell Island. A wireless station is located there and a landing would have been reported before now, it has been argued.

Silver Years

By Gertrude S. Trowbridge

"After the Golden Years of Youth, Come Those of Fine Silver"

What a scapegoat we make of Time!

When we are slovenly thinkers, we blame years instead of inattention and we say: "I must be growing old; I say what I don't mean to say."

And yet it was a very young woman who showed the same trait, once while walking on Fifth avenue with a friend. Suddenly noticing an old woman ahead who had a slit in the back of her frock, the girl said impulsively: "I must tell her about it, she probably doesn't know that her back looks like that."

"I wouldn't bother to tell her," drawled the other girl indifferently; "she is not a tidy person, anyhow, and probably doesn't care how she looks. See how her shoes are all run down at the heel!"

The other girl deliberated a moment, then she said: "I think I shall tell her. I wouldn't like it, not to be told if I had a tear like that."

So she slipped through the crowd, touched the stranger on the shoulder and announced: "Excuse me, madam; your shoes are all run down at the heel."

The mad astonishment of the woman at this odd information made the girl retire in great haste and confusion. But she did not say: "I must be growing old; I say what I don't mean to say." She simply laughed all the way home, at the recollection, and called herself every kind of fool.

Again we blame Time unjustly when we say: "I must be getting old; my memory is not good." Any one who says that would better stop in a home where there are young children and notice how 70 per cent of their remarks begin with: "Mother, where's my ——?" or, "I can't remember where I left my ——." Teachers of primary grades can give similar examples of complete lack of memory that taxes ingenuity in training.

Of course, there are other explanations than carelessness for bewilderment in late years.

A grandmother, if she herself has known a grandmother, has had contact with representatives of five generations. If she has noticed characteristics of each, there may arise bewilderment and confusion which should be clarified. For each generation has had such differences of method and experience that one who is interested in them all and stands representing the central point of this stream of life, can easily lose balance, by crowding the mind. There must be elimination of irrelevant matter, nice adjustment to retain poise, in order to get only advantages which come from such knowledge and experience.

Of course, fright at symptoms of bewilderment adds to their intensity but patience in untangling thought, little by little, can clarify and comfort a mind that has seemed foggy and too crowded with memories.

CHARLES TAFT RITES WILL BE HELD TODAY

Brother of U. S. Chief Justice Was Noted for Liberal Philanthropy.

GAVE AWAY $10,000,000

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Charles P. Taft, 86, one of the world's most liberal philanthropists, who donated almost $10,000,000 here to arts, music, education, and charity, and whose financial interests included ownership of baseball clubs, newspapers, cotton plantations, hotels and mines, who died last night from pneumonia, will be buried tomorrow afternoon. He was ill a year and a half.

His body rested tonight in his downtown residence, one of the show places of the city. The Taft mansion is surrounded by factories, apartments, commission merchant clearing houses and storerooms. He was one of the few wealthy persons here who refused to move from the old financial district. His home houses the greatest art treasure collection in the Middle West, paintings and porcelains being valued at $5,000,000, all of which he has donated to the City of Cincinnati.

Published Newspaper.

As publisher of the Times-Star, which he made one of the strong Republican newspapers in the Ohio Valley, Mr. Taft was interested actively in politics, his father having been in President Grant's Cabinet. In his late political life he supported the presidential candidacy of his half brother, William Howard Taft, who was en route here tonight from Washington.

Funeral services will be at 2 o'clock tomorrow in Christ Church here. Burial will be in Spring Grove Cemetery. Mr. Taft married Annie Sinton, daughter of David Sinton, wealthy iron manufacturer. Mrs. Taft, two daughters, Chief Justice Taft, several brothers and nephews survive him.

Controlled Chicago Cubs.

Charles P. Taft purchased the controlling interest in the Chicago National League Baseball Club in 1905. He promoted a championship team, the Cubs winning the pennant in 1906, 1907, 1908 and 1910 in addition to capturing the world's series in 1908. Later he bought an interest in the Philadelphia Nationals.

His philanthropies were not confined to Cincinnati. He made substantial gifts to Yale, Princeton, Johns Hopkins and Harvard. Local benefactions included $1,000,000 endowment for the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra; $200,000 toward erection of a Masonic temple, Mr. Taft being a thirty-third degree Mason; $500,000 to the University of Cincinnati and donations to many other civic, cultural and social organizations.

(Associated Press.)

Their two sons and daughter, Mrs. Frederick J. Manning, will join the Chief Justice and Mrs. Taft at Cincinnati.

Mr. and Mrs. Taft boarded the train fifteen minutes before it left at 6:30 o'clock.

The Chief Justice planned to return to Washington Friday night to attend a conference of the Supreme Court on Saturday and be present when it reconvenes on Monday.

Sugar Tuberculosis Cure Depicted to Science Group

Discovery Made Possible by Christmas Health Seals Sale Is Hailed at Session of Iowa State Medical Association; Test Results Told.

Des Moines, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—An amazing new kind of sugar was described as a hope for finding a cure for tuberculosis at a joint session today of the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Iowa State Medical Association.

The sugar is produced by tuberculosis germs. It is a sweet, dusty-white substance, highly complex but capable of being reduced to ordinary glucose.

Its discovery is one of the things that sale of Christmas health seals has helped to make possible. It was found at one of the twenty nationally famous scientific organizations cooperating in search for a tuberculosis cure. The director of this far-flung laboratory attack, Dr. William Charles White, of the United States Public Health Service, Washington, reported the discovery to the medical profession recently, and today told of developments since then and of numerous other lines of investigation.

He said the sugar might be the chemical bond between the tuberculosis bacillus and the one kind of human bodily cell in which tuberculosis is able to spread. As no other cells have been found through which tuberculosis attacks man successfully, "there is hope," Dr. White said, "that if the germ can be divorced from this cell it no longer can cause the disease. In other words, a positive cure might be possible."

It is proposed now to strike at the sugar to learn whether it is the link. Study of the effects of light on the sugar will be one of the experiments.

The sugars are peculiar in their effects. Given to healthy animals they are harmless, but to those with tuberculosis they are deadly. One of these sugars killed a tubercular guinea pig in four hours. The animal's temperature dropped 10 degrees before death. Dr. White said the sugars appear to have the peculiarity of being definitely related to fevers, sweats, and serious symptoms which involve loss of appetite and wasting away.

Another peculiarity is that the sugars made by human, cattle and bird tuberculosis bacilli are not interchangeable. Cattle tuberculosis sugar, for example, has no apparent effect on humans.

Other lines of attack are in study of several albumins and fats which the bacilli also make along with the sugars, experiments with X-rays and work on the susceptible cells, named monocytes, which the bacilli invade. These same monocytes once were looked upon, Dr. White said, as protective cells against disease generally, including tuberculosis.

"No one," he said, "can safely predict the future of these studies, but they are of so fundamental a character that they are essential to all our knowledge of life. Too much faith has been placed in our falling death rate from tuberculosis as the evidence that this disease is under control. The recent predictions of some of our statisticians may do great harm in turning the public mind from this great task. There still are probably more than 160,000 deaths annually from tuberculosis in the United States."

Grain Elevator Blast Kills One; Three Hurt

Enid, Okla., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—One man was killed and several thousand dollars worth of damage was done to the elevator of the Pillsbury Flour Mills Co. here today in an explosion presumably caused by dust. The force of the explosion was felt throughout the northeast section of Enid, in which the $2,500,000 Pillsbury plant is located.

GO TO THE SOURCE.

Senator Jones, whose standing as a dry leader is well established, has called upon the Department of Justice to test the guilt of purchasers of liquor under the Volstead act. Instead of enacting Senator Sheppard's formula for making the purchaser equally culpable with the seller, he suggests trying out the law already on the statute books. Senator Jones refers to section 6, title 2, of the Volstead act, which provides:

> No one shall manufacture, sell, purchase, transport or prescribe any liquor without first obtaining a permit from the commissioner to do so * * *

Whether or not Congress in enacting this section intended that the purchaser should be held amenable to the penalties of the law is a question.

The most intelligent suggestion that has emerged from the prohibition squabble of the last year is that the Government concentrate its operations against the sources of supply. If importations over the Federal borders were cut off, the prohibition problem would be largely solved. The burden of dealing with local violations could well be left to the States. The very fact that most of the State laws make provision for prosecution of those who purchase or have liquor in their possession shows that they intend to deal with petty violations, while depending upon the Government to stop the smuggling of intoxicants over the borders. Any program to divert Federal agents to petty purchasing cases would be a victory for organized rumrunners.

The policy of the administration at present is to destroy the important sources of supply. Hints from the National Law Enforcement Commission suggest that this tendency will be accentuated in the future. If the drys of Congress are really sincere they will have nothing to do with these schemes to dissipate the efforts of the Prohibition Bureau.

GAS FROM CORNSTALKS.

After several years of research work Dr. Arthur M. Buswell, of the University of Illinois, reports his discovery of a means of generating marsh gas from cornstalks to the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The stalks are pulped, then placed in a tank, where bacterial decomposition under temperatures around 60 degrees Fahrenheit does the rest of the work of generating methane or marsh gas, which may be used for heating and illuminating purposes.

Forty acres of cornstalks will supply heat, power, cooking and lighting for the average farm for a year, while 4 acres will supply illumination for the farm for a year. Twenty pounds of pulped material will furnish a day's supply of 100 cubic feet of methane. There is practically no loss whatsoever from the stalks, as the refuse remaining after generating the marsh gas can be purified and made into paper. Also, from the waste of cornstalks and other grain plants the by-product, furfural, is derived, which has the possibility of developing new explosives and has already given anesthetics, benzine and formaldehyde substitutes, tear-producing gas and super-sweet derivatives. Among other useful by-products from this waste material can be found synthetic lumber, wall board, adhesives, motor fuel and lubricating oil, charcoal and wood alcohol.

It now remains for the scientists and chemists, including Dr. Buswell, to perfect means of producing these by-products in large quantities in an economic manner. The difficulty of producing these by-products cheaply is greater than the labor of discovering them.

TOM EDISON'S GOOD SENSE.

Keeping the Government out of business is one of the chief duties of the President, in the opinion of Thomas A. Edison. In a recent interview written for the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, the famous inventor said:

> Keeping the Government out of business is the President's biggest job, and I should include the clearing out of the bureaucracies, which are growing up in Washington and becoming a public nuisance. If he can keep the Government out of business and see that Government regulation is fair, both to the public and to private operators, we are going to go ahead very quickly.

Mr. Edison's statement is timely in view of the fact that several attempts may be made at the coming session of Congress to put the Government in business. The general policy of Congress is against competition between public and private enterprises, but some members are always willing to override a general principle to secure advantages for their home States. When Congress fails to keep the Government within its proper sphere of action it becomes the duty of the President to use his veto powers.

President Coolidge exercised this authority by "pocket-vetoing" the bill which would have put the Government in the power business at Muscle Shoals. President Hoover has not yet had occasion to reverse the decision of Congress on an issue of this kind, but because of his intimate understanding of business he will no doubt guard against any attempts to socialize the United States.

Practically all of the agitation to put the Government in business, of one kind or another, comes from sections of the country which are seeking special benefits at public expense. The American people as a whole want to manage their own economic affairs. They resent the insinuation that politicians in Washington are more capable of directing great enterprises than they. The United States has become the richest and most powerful nation in the world under its present system of private enterprise, and it is quite right that the people should resent any encroachment in this field.

CHICAGO'S DREAM.

It was a happy inspiration in the Chicago Tribune to begin a campaign for the transfer of the National Capital to Chicago. This project is alluring alike to gunmen and their victims, by concentrating their attention upon the prospect of fabulous spoils. The two great divisions of Chicago's population are thus brought into a harmonious union, animated by a single thought, and their swelling chorus nearly drowns out the expiring grunts, squeals and groans of the slaughter house, that noble symbol and ideal of Chicago's enterprising manslayers.

Naturally, the Tribune finds many faults in Washington as the National Capital. It is too far from Chicago, for one thing. This has appeared like a blessing to the country at large, but the country is mistaken, as usual. Again, the climate of Washington is execrable; much hotter in summer than Chicago, and much colder in winter. In Chicago's delicious semitropical clime the pineapple blooms to perfection and the bulbul sings without ceasing, while in its so-called winter the problems of traffic congestion are solved by the interposition of copious snows, judiciously distributed by impartial gales in such fashion as to persuade overambitious racketeers and busy coroners to suspend their labors.

The most crushing indictment against Washington, however, is the deteriorating effect of its climate upon the mentality of legislators. Politicians who come to Washington from the exhilarating open spaces are soon robbed of 20 per cent of their intelligence, according to the Tribune. This figure may be accurate, but it seems to us that it is absurdly low. Taking Western legislators by and large, it would appear that their efficiency virtually evaporates to zero in Washington. The resistless eloquence that sways the fierce democratic of the praries and shakes the arsenals of Chicago seems to turn sour as it fulminates over Washington. Something in the climate here clips the wings of romance and punctures high-blown balloons of imaginative statesmanship. A crabbed officialdom interferes with the embroidering of the Constitution. Many a Pegasus from the West is transformed into a draft horse in the unromantic air of Washington. Hidebound precedent, a plodding Supreme Court, a Cabinet enmeshed in red tape and a Congress held down to sordid routine are all evidences of the havoc wrought by an adverse climate upon a naturally impulsive people.

The Chicago Tribune does well to draw attention to these matters, for the purpose of inducing Chicagoans to forget their condition. If they can be diverted by the hope of moving the National Capital to Chicago, nothing but good can result. Hope, waving its magic wand, will lull the gunman into blissful dreams of capitols and golden domes and the weary refugees of gangland will be at rest. Old, cynical, jaded Washington smiles benignantly upon Chicago and bids it lap itself in limitless dreams of hope.

BOULDER CANYON.

Secretary of the Interior Wilbur has written a letter to the four Western States which protested against the price he fixed for sale of power to be generated at the Black Canyon Dam. Utah, Colorado, Wyoming and New Mexico do not look with favor on the generation of power for Southern California at 1.63 mills per kilowatt hour. After a conference at Denver they informed Dr. Wilbur that they never would have supported the bill by adhering to the Colorado River compact if they had "thought it susceptible to a construction resulting in such permanent economic damage." Cheap power in California, it is feared, will draw all industrial development away from the States in the upper basin.

Mr. Wilbur replies that he is confronted with the problem of selling power. He fixed upon the price of 1.63 mills as the maximum that can be demanded against the competition of nearby oil, gas and coal fields. Power can not be sold at 1.75 mills, the price suggested by the upper States, he concludes, without bankrupting the bidder.

This letter was made public in spite of an announcement by Senator Oddie, of Nevada, that his State has put in a bid for all the power at the price suggested by the upstream States. Acceptance of this bid would increase the Government's revenue from the dam by approximately $500,000. Nevada is not seeking the entire output of power, but the bid was made "in order to dissipate the theory, once for all, that it is necessary to make any concessions to certain organizations or areas, to make the construction possible.

In the face of this offer it will be difficult to convince the people that the best interests of the country will be served by letting Southern California have all the power at a sacrifice price. The allocation by the Interior Department gives California all the power (50 per cent to the metropolitan water district of Southern California and 25 per cent to both Los Angeles and the Southern California Edison Company) with the provision that Nevada and Arizona have preference rights to 18 per cent each and municipalities to 4 per cent. California is to get not only the bulk of power, but a price on it that is .12 mills below what other States are willing to pay.

If the objective of the Black Canyon Dam bill was never obvious before, it can not be mistaken now. The whole project was conceived and engineered through Congress for the purpose of furnishing free water and cheap power to a section of the country at the Government's expense. It is surprising that the taxpayers of the United States permitted this bill to pass through Congress.

CANADIAN BROADCASTING.

Canada's proposed solution of the broadcasting problem is of interest in the United States inasmuch as it may point the way to the only satisfactory solution of the American problem. Under government auspices, a Canadian commission concluded last September an exhaustive survey into the situation, as a result of which it recommended the nationalization of broadcasting. The report probably will be brought before parliament at the forthcoming session. It is proposed to erect high-powered stations that will make possible good reception day and night throughout the entire settled area of the country. As a nucleus, seven 50,000-watt stations are proposed, to be operated as a chain by one national company, the revenues of which would be derived from license fees, from advertising revenues, and from a government subsidy.

In the United States the broadcasting problem is made complex by the number of individual broadcasting stations that clamor for time on the air. The larger chains, in addition, stand accused of being under control of a radio monopoly, and the demand at times seems to be that the chains be destroyed. This would merely add to the complexity of the situation and the general confusion. The Canadian commission, on the other hand, recommends that an out-and-out monopoly be created.

It may be that radio is a natural monopoly and that satisfactory broadcasting can not be had until and unless it is so treated. If the recommendation of the Canadian commission is adopted by parliament it should not take long to discover whether or not monopolized broadcasting is superior, and also whether or not chains composed of 50,000-watt stations (such power is a rarity in the United States), are practicable. It also should be proved whether or not a nationalized company, gaining its revenues in large part from license fees and a subsidy, will be able to broadcast programs of a quality equal to those provided by privately owned stations.

Money which formerly went for drink is the motive power of our prosperity, says Samuel Crowther. But the money that still goes for drink is the basis of prosperity for a considerable number.

Students of New York University earned more than $29,000,000 last year. They ought to give the faculty a few lessons.

WEATHER WISDOM

From the London Times.

What a fortune a man might make if he could predict the weather accurately a few weeks or even a few days ahead! The whole outdoor world would be at his feet. Farmers, gardeners, holiday-makers, hostesses with open-air ambitions, would vie with one another in pressing their fees upon him. Meteorology has made great strides since ships have been fitted with wireless and the development of flying has made it both possible and necessary to investigate the behavior of the upper air. But it is a far cry yet to being able to arrange a picnic, let alone sow a crop, with the certainty of having the right weather for it. The weather report is still rather the occasion for heavy jesting than the sure basis of outdoor plans.

But would it be all gain to know for certain what the weather is going to be? To say nothing of the ruin of such worthy craftsmen as the makers of mackintoshes and umbrellas, many a familiar feature of our daily lives would be wiped out. Never again should we know the excitement of scanning the heavens for the cloud no bigger than a man's hand, or alternatively for a patch of blue big enough to make a sailor a pair of trousers. Gone would be the unready conversationalist's very present help in time of trouble, the one safe gambit for opening a new acquaintanceship. And gone would be the frequent discipline of preparing for the worst while pretending to expect the best, and of putting a good face on a bad job.

Nearly every man plumes himself on being weatherwise. It is the prerogative of the head of the household, and the mark of his manhood, to read aloud the weather forecast in the newspaper, to tap the barometer, and to give his verdict. To the farmer it is, more than metaphorically, a question of bread and butter; to the airman, a matter of life and death; to any country dweller, a problem of consequence to his comfort and convenience. Even the sheltered townsman fancies himself not a little as a weather prophet, though the only thing at stake may be the choice between a stick and an umbrella.

This universal inquisitiveness is one more example of man's innate desire to peer into the future. He can not help trying to pierce the clouds which obscure his outlook. Unregulated, the longing leads him by strange paths into strange company. He may easily find himself treading the road to Endor, and rubbing elbows with astrologers, soothsayers, and witches on blasted heaths. The would-be seer does not stop to ask himself whether he really would be better off if he could read the future. He suffers from the delusion that, whilst the rosy hours can not escape him, prevision would enable him to avoid peril and mitigate distress.

But that is against all the rules of the game. The fundamental postulate is that he will see exactly what is bound to come to him. Such absolute foreknowledge would make of him the hypnotized and helpless victim of the approaching doom. All aspiration, all incentive to effort, would be dead. Ignorance of the future is not merely a mercy. It is the essential basis of all conduct and all character.

THE CHRISTMAS NECKTIE.

I saw a necktie in the store
So loud the clerks could hear it roar.

I laughed about it and I said:
"Will humans wear so bright a red?

"Will human beings stop to buy
So gaudy and so gay a tie?"

"Oh, yes," the willing clerk replied:
"That's really lovely when it's tied.

"Some people like that kind of stuff
They can't get neckties loud enough."

"Well, let 'em have 'em! As for me,
My neckties softer hued must be.

"I can't imagine taste so flat
As to select a tie like that.

"What wretched soul exists on earth
Who thinks that tie two dollars' worth?"

Thus speaking, on I went my way,
And got that tie on Christmas Day.

That monstrous thing was picked for me
And hung upon our Christmas tree.

The tie I'd thought they'd never sell,
A fond relation thought "just swell."

Moral—on every family tree
One taste depraved there's bound to be.

Spank Those Who Play With Matches and There Will Be No Fire Alarm.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

A FEW years ago this country indulged in one of its periodic frenzies and made life unpleasant for "Reds."

When a people commonly ruled by sentiment interests itself in a crusade of this kind, it seldom is guided by reason and tolerance.

Extremists take the lead. In this instance they led to disaster. They persecuted aliens; and any man who did not believe in a protective tariff, the divine mission of the marines and the infallibility of the courts was suspected of being a dangerous "radical."

Passions exhaust themselves quickly, however, and enthusiasms invite a reaction. The very intensity of this patriotic blaze reduced it quickly to ashes, and the patent unfairness of the campaign resulted in a revulsion of feeling that made radicalism respectable.

The "young intellectuals" began to berate the Government and it became the fashion to be cynical, to profess sympathy for Russia, and to scoff at all things American.

Thus do extremists, by their excess of fury, raise up enemies to defeat the cause they would defend.

The result was much more unfortunate than many people realize.

Opponents of all that America stands for now operate openly in all parts of the United States, and sane men who endeavor to arouse the community against them are ridiculed.

The extremists shouted "wolf" once too often.

The "Red menace" is very real. It may not be guided by Russia, but in some measure it is inspired by Russia, and it is undermining American institutions.

The Stalin who dominates Russia is an ignorant brute. He and his followers would seize every man's property and make every man a slave of the "state." They would abolish the home as we know it; make marriage a form of licensed prostitution, and make the practice of religion a crime.

Their sympathizers in America are less ferocious, but they also hate the successful. They do not believe the marriage bond sacred, and they scoff at religion.

Faith in God, protection of the home, and belief in every man's right to a reward for his labor make this nation what it is.

When we destroy these, we destroy our foundation.

Any man who attempts to destroy them is an enemy of America and an enemy of freedom.

Isn't it possible to combat such men sanely, instead of waiting for another outburst of frenzy?

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

DABLYN CRYMES PROBES A BIG ROBBERY.

Dablyn Crymes, the great detective, has been investigating that New York banquet hold-up in which, according to the police, seven gunmen invaded a restaurant and robbed all the guests for no other purpose than to get from a Chicago underworld character a murder contract carried on his person. The Chicago man was a guest at the banquet and, according to the strange story, the contract he carried guaranteed the killing of two men for $20,000 and was signed by a certain "vegetable king."

* * * *

"I have found," reports Dablyn, "that the Chicago man carried not only a contract but a diary and some 11 pounds of other incriminating documents." He then produced the following copy of the diary:

Monday—Called on International Carrot King and had jolly chat. He was in his best mood and wanted four men killed. I tried to get him to let the contract at my price, but he insisted on competitive bids.

Tuesday—Lunched with Leek and Lima Bean Baron, who had written in asking me to quote prices on bumping off six adults whose faces they did not like. I bid $10,000 each. He wanted them killed at the rate of three for $25,000. Finally compromised to do the entire six killings within ten days for $52,000 or money refunded.

Wednesday—Nothing important. Killed a couple of onion merchants for Scallion Czar under contract 4578-B.

Thursday—Busy all day on contract 6789-B with Cucumber Magnate and contract 4578-C with well-known Yellow Turnip and Mashed Potato Potentate.

Friday—Very dull. Seven murders under old contract. No new business.

Saturday—In court on suit against Cauliflower King for violation of contract. He accepted flat rate for taking rival for a ride, but refused to pay unless given a discount for cash.

* * * *

The following postal, taken from a visiting gunman, was also shown by the great detective. It was to a big Banana Fritter Magnate:

Dear Sir—Your kind letter of the 11th inst. ordering two gross of killings at the rates quoted has been received and we are proceeding to fill same. Hoping to have your continued patronage, we are, yours truly,

Mr. Crymes promises other sensational revelations soon.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

League of Nations, Socialists, Anarchists and Other Internationalists Hope for a Superstate.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: I wonder whether advocates of the League of Nations who are advocating ratification of the League revision of the Senate's safeguarding reservation know just where they stand; whether they have seriously glimpsed the future?

Do they realize the special meaning of the term "internationalism" as it may be applied to themselves? Are they aware that they allying themselves with that class of radical reformers whom they have been accustomed to call visionary and anarchistic?

Certainly the internationalists, intent on the utimate scrapping of all existing forms of government, must view the League of Nations' propaganda with approval. They, too, are peace propagandists, and like their unintentional allies, the League idealists, are obsessed by the idea of a world organism which aims at the outlawry of war.

Hitherto the movement for a supreme internationalistic state has been advocated by idealists of two schools—that of the Socialists and that of the anarchists. Bertrand Russell, in "Proposed Roads to Freedom," published in 1919, says:

"Socialism and anarchism, in their modern form, spring respectively from two protagonists, Mark and Bakunin, who fought a lifetime battle, culminating in a split in the First International."

To these may now be added a third internationalist movement with Mr. Root as its protagonist, the practical development of which will be fairly well started when the Senate considers the League of Nations protocol. The formation of the supergovernment, which will naturally follow, will be the work of decades and possibly of a century or more.

That the final outcome will be the millenium of Holy Writ does not necessarily follow. Possibly it may be the United States of the World which some are now dreaming about. It may be a Republic of the United Soviets of the World, a sovietocracy.

Anyhow, I think that those who favor a world court should consider with some attention to practical details, exactly how and whither the world will drift when the League of Nations, safeguarded by its supreme court of the world, is firmly established. STACY GEORGE.

Northwestern Protest Against Proposed Railroad Consolidation Plan.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: A tremendously important question before the country is the consolidation of railroads.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has now attempted to comply with the ill-advised provision in the transportation act of 1920, instructing it to prepare a plan along the lines of which all future consolidations must take place. It is ridiculous to assume that all vital questions of importance in every State of the Union could be carefully considered by the commission in one investigation where neither shippers nor carriers participated.

The plan now proposed will probably be useful in attracting careful and intelligent consideration to the problem, but it should not be accepted as the final word.

I believe Congress should promptly repeal the arbitrary provision in the 1920 act and enact legislation providing a legislative guide for future consolidation. It should instruct the commission that when petitions for unification are presented, due consideration must be given to the maintenance of competition, the promotion of economy, the affording of better service, the preservation and improvement of service by necessary weak or short lines, simplified and more effective regulation, the establishment of systems well balanced within themselves and with other systems, and other factors in the public interest.

The Parker bill now pending before the House committee on interstate and foreign commerce does this very thing. It should be promptly considered and reported to the House.

I will not now comment on the suggestions for the Northwest except to say that I am disappointed in any proposal that would end our systems at the Twin Cities of Minnesota. Such omits the important factor of obtaining a "well-balanced system" in the sense of a diversity of commodities carried. Northwestern railroads should be connected up with roads leading at least to Chicago, such as the Burlington, and thus obtain the benefit of a greater density of traffic as well as the transportation of relatively more manuactured commodities taking higher rates. Only in this way can we hope for substantial reductions on bulky farm products. O. B. BURTNESS.

December 28.

Dangerous Paths Where Street Car Passengers and Autos Mix.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If minor complaints about traffic conditions are still in order, I would like to file one about the loading platforms in my neighborhood at Fourteenth and Park road. Between the platform on the west side of the Fourteenth-street car tracks and the curb there is barely room for one auto to pass. Now and then a reckless driver breaks into this narrow space at a 20-mile clip more or less. An equally reckless jaywalker crossing in front of the speeding car is apt to be bumped off in another of those "unavoidable accidents" we read about.

The inconvenience of the street-car-riding public is, of course, very great. The demands of convenience as well as safety call for cautionary signs at all car stops like this where car patrons in large numbers are constantly getting on and off.

At Fourteenth and F streets, in front of the National Press Building, I frequently risk my life taking a chance in crossing the 15 feet or so to the sidewalk. R. P. C.

India Nationalists Organize Left Wing

Gandhi's Followers Form "Democratic Party" Within Congress.

Lahore, India, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—The India national congress broke up today with a minority rump meeting under the leadership of Sprinivass Aiyengar, who formed what he termed a "democratic party" within the ranks of the congress.

The minority leader compared his new party with the independent Labor party in England, which forms the left wing of the regular Labor party. He said the party was prepared to carry on with the program of the Lahore congress.

The rump session followed upon a walkout of 30 members from the Congress when the minority failed to obtain representation on the new working committee of the congress, whose membership was dictated by Mahatma Gandhi, Nationalist leader.

Pandit Jawaharlal Nehru moved a resolution warning subscribers to Indian loans that debts incurred in the present administration by other than purely Indian national interests would be repudiated by a national government if it came to power.

Mexico City, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Reports from military commanders throughout Mexico to the Secretary of War today disclosed the entire country at peace for the first time in several years.

The Secretary of War announced that not a single governor had reported a military problem of the slightest importance.

CRIME GROUP SHUNS DRY LAW ARGUMENT

commission had intimated it would take three or four years to work this out. I could not believe it. In my judgment the President would not tolerate such delay on so pressing and important a matter, nor did it seem to me to be warranted at all.

"I have conferred with several members of the commission. Some think that the prohibition phase of their work can be done within three or four months, and all whom I have seen agree that it can be completed by July 1 at the latest. This should be done.

"Much of the remainder of the commission's work should be done by then, too, and I want to say that if more money is sought, a clear and convincing showing of its need will have to be made before such money is provided. A full showing as to employes and their compensation will be called for.

"Every member of the commission knows the general phases of the problems to be solved. They will confer with the men and women most familiar with these problems. Many of the commissioners are lawyers and judges, personally familiar with law violations and the needs of our courts and procedure. Their aggregate judgment as to what should be done will meet the situation as well as it can be met except as time and experience may dictate.

"Some expert studies may be desirable to bring out certain facts, but these investigations should not be too prolonged or detailed. If carried too far into detail, the work will die of its own weight.

"We want the judgment of the commission and not that of experts whose opinion would likely be contradicted by other experts. In my judgment, if the commission can devise a method by which punishment for law violations can be made more swift and sure, it will have fully justified its creation."

The Listening Post

By CARLISLE BARGERON

THAT exchange of mystery letters between Mr. Hoover and Senator Borah seems now to have been a case of the President stepping on the senator's foot under the table as a wife does with her husband when he makes a break. The senator, or somebody spilled the beans, by saying: "Hey, who is that stepping on me?" but that is far as the incident has gotten.

None of the guests yet know exactly what happened.

The President wrote the senator a letter right after the latter said he had enough documentary evidence with which he would discharge seventeen district attorneys if he were President, and the senator replied to the letter.

* * * *

THE impression was widely held, in the absence of any explanation from either the White House or the senator, that Mr. Hoover had asked the senator for his evidence and that the senator's letter was in compliance with that request.

However, the senator still has his documentary evidence. As one observer explained it, he intends to hold onto it, too. That evidence will be the last thing he will part with, in fact.

Well, if this is the case, and it is believed that the President asked for the evidence, it must be that the senator told him this, told him that he wanted to hold onto the evidence. No wonder then, if this is the state of affairs, that the exchange of letters between the two men has not been made public.

* * * *

THE senator, it is understood, intends to make use of this evidence when the prohibition storm breaks in the Senate. He has devoted too much time and energy toward gathering it to turn it over to the President. He would rather the prohibition storm hold off until after the disposition of the tariff, but no one seriously expects that it will do that.

The fact that Borah has this evidence and intends to use it in the manner he does gives this forthcoming prohibition airing an unusual importance.

It will not give Mr. Hoover any appetite for Mr. Borah to expose his district attorneys. The question that will naturally be asked is why Mr. Borah had to come along and do this.

* * * *

THE President is believed to have been moving along as fast as could reasonably be expected in tightening up prohibition enforcement and in cleaning out the bad timber of his enforcement personnel. Any number of district attorneys are understood to have been removed since he took office.

But that is not the picture that Borah's revelation in the Senate will make. He does not have particularly to do with prohibition enforcement as a senator. It is not associated with any committee of which he is a member.

Yet it now develops that during all of this talk in recent months about how Mr. Hoover was tightening up enforcement and of the additional plans he has, the senator from Idaho has been out working himself up a prohibition case, one that has real meat, documentary data against district attorneys. And he intends to spread his findings before the Senate, this instead of giving his evidence to the President.

Hoover and Tariff Rapped by Shouse

Democratic Chieftain Also Flays Naming of Grundy.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Jouett Shouse, of Lexington, Ky., chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, issued a statement here today in which he attacked the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill, the appointment of Joseph R. Grundy to the United States Senate and the silence of President Hoover on the tariff question. He said that the "main lesson from political events in the last year is that the United Democracy is now able to accomplish what would have been considered miraculous of achievement six months ago."

The statement assailed the Smoot-Hawley tariff bill as the "most impotent, insolent and extortionate measure ever presented to the United States Congress," and went on to describe various lobby investigations.

"The net result of all this," said the statement, "is that the Smoot-Hawley bill is utterly discredited and that either the coalition measure, which attempts to carry out the promise of real tariff benefits for the farmers, will be enacted or there will be no tariff bill at all.

"That latter outcome is the more probable outcome, which means that months and months of the congressional sessions have been utterly wasted because of this effort to jam through a tariff revision that had no reason in economy or other justifiable excuse at this time."

Mellon En Route Back to Capital

Treasury Head Denies His Return Is Due to Dry Situation Here.

Palm Beach, Fla., Jan. 1 (A.P.). Refusing to comment on Senator Borah's agitation for his resignation as head of the prohibition enforcement forces, Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon left tonight for Washington. He denied he was rushing back because of recent developments in the situation there, declaring his trip north at this time was planned before he departed on his holiday cruise.

The yacht Vagabondia, owned by William L. Melon, of Pittsburgh, a nephew of the Treasury Secretary, arrived at the port of Palm Beach early today from Cuba. Mr. Mellon and members of his party spent the day in Palm Beach, departing by train tonight for Washington. In Mr. Mellon's party are his son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. David K. Bruce; his son, Paul Mellon, and Mrs. Martin Henry Carmody.

While Senator Borah and others have been agitating in Washington the resignation of Secretary Mellon, the Mellon yacht has been making a leisurely cruise of waters in the vicinity of the Bahama Islands and Cuba.

PRIMO'S INTENTION OF QUITTING DENIED

Madrid Is Left in Dark as Rumors of Dictator's Plans Fly.

ROYAL DECREE FORECAST

Madrid, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Circles close to King Alfonso today expressed belief that Gen. Primo de Rivera, Spanish premier-dictator, will not resign just now and assert that King Alfonso already privately has expressed his confidence in him with regard to the political transformation contemplated.

These quarters also said that royal sanction officially will be forthcoming within a few days and that alarming rumors current here and abroad are based on misinformation.

With the premier, however, mute on the subject the rumors persisted today that he would soon quit the helm of the Spanish ship of state he assumed after a bloodless coup in September, 1923. These latter rumors came from sources usually considered well informed.

The widespread assumption is that the premier's plan presented to the king deals with the general idea of substituting some time another government for Primo's dictatorship, restoring the constitution and calling elections for some time in 1930.

These elections presumably would be for municipal councils, the provincial legislatures and the national assembly or some new parliament to replace the present national assembly.

If the king expresses confidence in Primo it is assumed there will be no present change in the government. On the other hand, if the king considers it at present opportune for Primo to resign, it is believed the resignation of the government will quickly follow.

With all the rumors, however, Madrid was still in the dark as to whether the premier will resign, what new government will succeed if he does, when and how the end of the dictatorship will come if the present reports that Primo may quit are not realized, and what was the character of Primo's "transcendental plan" which he says he had presented to the king.

The newspaper Nacion, a government organ, tonight prominently displayed an announcement lamenting and denying reports that a political crisis existed in Spain and rebuking those responsible for them. The announcement was thought to have been inspired by the government.

Bubonic Plague in Tunis.

Paris, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Reports were received in Paris today of an outbreak of bubonic plague in Tunis. Fifty Arabs have been placed under surveillance after being seized.

Any COLD

That cold may lead to something serious, if neglected. The time to do something for it is now. Don't wait until it develops into bronchitis. Take two or three tablets of Bayer Aspirin as soon as you feel a cold coming on. Or as soon as possible after it starts. Bayer Aspirin will head off or relieve the aching and feverish feeling—will stop the headache. And if your throat is affected, dissolve two or three tablets in a quarter-glassful of warm water, and gargle. This quickly soothes a sore throat and reduces inflammation and infection. Read proven directions for neuralgia, for rheumatism and other aches and pains. Genuine Bayer Aspirin is harmless to the heart.

Many Present at Breakfast to Diplomats

New Year Function for Envoys Is Colorful Spectacle.

By JEAN ELIOT.

TRADITIONALLY the most brilliant of New Year functions—save the White House reception—the diplomatic breafast, held yesterday at the Pan-American Union with the Secretary of State and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson as hosts, proved exceptionally enjoyable, the guests all being in a holiday mood in spite of the fact that most of them had danced until early morning to see the old year out.

The Diplomatic Corps went from the White House to the breakfast, with just enough pause between for some of the envoys to get out of court dress and into formal morning clothes, and there seemed none missing, from the ambassadors down to the least of the secretaries. All were accompanied by the ladies of their families, and the group of guests invited to meet them, usually limited to a few high ranking officials and quondam diplomats now living in Washington, seemed to have been considerably augmented yesterday, for a number of Army and Navy officers were present and a good many from resident society.

The Pan American Union, one of the most beautiful buildings in Washington and perfectly designed for entertaining, was in gala dress. Scarlet poinsettias were splashed against the growing green things in the patio and, in high contrast to the creamy walls, decked the long tables in the Hall of the Americas from which a delicious buffet breakfast was served. The scarlet and blue uniforms of the Marine Band orchestra stationed in the patio, had echo in the bright feathers of the parroquets, who bravely strove to make themselves heard above the music.

Secretary and Mrs. Stimson stood at the head of the stairway to greet their guests, who had already been given an informal welcome below by Dr. Leo S. Rowe, director general of the Pan American Union. Presentations were made by Mr. Charles Lee Cooke, master of ceremonies of the State Department.

Vice President Curtis, with Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann, were early arrivals; and among those who held impromptu court while the fete was in progress was Mrs. Woodrow Wilson.

The British Ambassador and Lady Isabella Howard, whose approaching departure is causir such general regret, were continuously surrounded and about each of the chiefs of missions gathered groups of their friends, glad of the opportunity to wish them "Happy New Year." Among those glimpsed—to name but a few at random—were the Ambassador of France and Mme. Claudel, the Ambassador of Italy and Donna Antonietta de Martino, the Ambassador of Germany and Frau von Prittwitz, the Japanese Ambassador and Mme. Debuchi, the Minister of Portugal and Viscount d'Alte, the Hungarian Minister and Countess Szechenyi, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Peter and the Minister of Albania, Mr. Konitza.

In the group of "diplomatic daughters," whose charming presence contributed an atmosphere of youthful gayety, were Miss Rosa Padilla, Miss Reine Claudel, Princess Elizabeth de Ligne, Miss Ellis Bostrom, Miss Lorana Prochnik, two or three of the Grisanti girls, daughters of the Minister of Venezuela and Senora de Grisanti, and Miss Gytha Stourton, kinswoman of Lady Isabella Howard.

In the administration families, sons seemed to outnumber daughters. Mr. Allan Hoover was "among those present," conspicuous for his popularity, and Mr. Charles Francis Adams, jr., was also among the guests. Another present of the Cabinet young people was Miss Caroline Hyde, daughter of the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde. The entire group of White House aids had been invited to the breakfast, and all were present who could be spared from the White House, where the President and Mrs. Hoover were having a family luncheon between the official reception and the reception to the public in the afternoon.

The Cabinet itself had representation in the Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Wilbur, the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Lamont and the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis, with some of the others possibly escaping detection in the crowd. And from the Supreme Court were noted Justice and Mrs. Stone, Justice and Mrs. Sutherland and Justice Sanford.

The Speaker and Mrs. Longworth came from the White House to the Pan American Union. Mrs. Longworth immediately leading Senator George Moses into a corner for a confab, which set everybody wondering just what they were talking about. Others glimpsed were Senator and Mrs. Guy D. Goff, Senator Arthur Capper, Representative Ruth Bryan Owen, Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom, Miss Vera Bloom, Representative and Mrs. Joe Crail, Representative and Mrs. J. Charles Linthicum, Gen. and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall, Brig. Gen. William E. Horton, Mr. Nelson T. Johnson, soon to go to China as Minister, Surgeon Gen. and Mrs. Merritte Ireland, Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John Hull, Brig. Gen. and Mrs. George F. Downey, and Maj. Julia Stimson, in uniform, as at the White House, as head of the Army Nurses' Corps.

Mr. and Mrs. Leland Harrison, just returned from Stockholm and soon to go to Montevido, Mr. Harrison having been appointed Minister to Uruguay, were constantly surrounded, and other "domestic diplomats" among the guests were the United States Ambassador to Chile and Mrs. Culbertson, with Miss Junia Culbertson, and the United States Minister to Salvador and Mrs. Warren Delano Robbins—the latter perhaps the handsomest woman in the room.

Mr. and Mrs. Perry Belmont, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, Mr. and Mrs. Chandler Anderson and Mr. and Mrs. Hampson Gary were among those formerly identified with the U. S. Foreign Service, who were present, and of the State Department group one noted Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Wilbur J. Carr, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Thaw and Mr. Herbert Hengstler, with his mother. The Former Governor of Pennsylvania and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot were of the few unofficial folk present, as were Mrs. Henry F. Dimock, Mrs. Edmund Pendleton, Miss Annie Hegeman, Mrs. George Mesta, Capt. and Mrs. John Gibbons and that very popular pair, the former Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. William M. Jardine.

The Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Charles Francis Adams will attend the Navy Relief Ball to be held at the Willard tonight, which will be one of the gala events of the season. The Assistant Secretary of the Navy for Aviation and Mrs. David Sinton Ingalls have recalled invitations for the dinner before the ball, which they had planned in honor of Secretary and Mrs. Adams because of the death of Mr. Charles P. Taft, grandfather of Mr. Ingalls.

Naval Officer and District Girl Are Wed

Lieut. Comdr. Baker and Miss Cora Barry United.

In the pause between the diplomatic breakfast and the round of Cabinet calls yesterday, a wedding took place which was of exceptional interest to Washingtonians. This was the marriage of Miss Cora Barry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Sheldon Barry, and Lieut. Comdr. Wilbur Du Puy Baker, U. S. N. The ceremony was solemnized in Bethlehem Chapel of the Washington Cathedral, the Rev. Dr. C. Ernest Smith, rector of St. Thomas' Church, officiating, and afterward there was a small reception for the bridal party and a few close friends at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barry, 1836 Jefferson place.

Lighted candles burned on the altar of the charming little stone chapel and the silver vases were filled with lilies.

The bride was given in marriage by her father. She wore a gown of ivory white satin, fashioned after a princess model with a graceful fullness in the long skirt. The bodice was designed with a round neckline and long fitted sleeves and a court train edged with deep rose point lace fell from the shoulders. Her tulle veil was arranged softly about her face and held at the front by a band of lace, and at the back by orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley.

Mrs. S Seveloon L. Brown, of Providence, R. I., was matron of honor for her sister, wearing a gown of coral colored georgette crepe, made on long lines with a skirt of soft folds of the material and the sleeves long and quite full. Her hat was of brown velvet, her slippers harmonized, and she carried a bouquet of Tallisman roses.

Comdr. John H. Towers, U. S. N., was the best man and the ushers selected included Lieut. Comdr. S Loper Lowe, Lieut. Comdr. A. B. W Waller, Comdr. James R. Barry, and Maj. David S. Barry, jr., U. S. M. C.

Mrs. Barry, mother of the bride, wore a gown of dahlia color velvet with a hat to match, and Mrs. Baker mother of the bridegroom, was in gray georgette crepe with accessories to correspond.

Lieut. Comdr. Baker and his bride left later in the afternoon for a wedding trip, the bride wearing a brown gown, with a hat to match, and a fur coat. They will be at home upon their return at 4416 Greenwich street.

Among the guests were the bridegroom's father, Mr. Isaac Baker, of Michigan, who came to Washington with Mrs. Baker.

Service Arms Marshaled to Greet Chiefs

Army and Navy Officers Pay New Year's Calls in Uniform.

The Army stormed the doors of the Secretary of War and Mrs. Hurley yesterday afternoon, with the Navy crowding in upon the Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. Adams. Both groups were in uniform, so that the receptions of the two service heads had, perhaps, more color than those of the other Cabineteers. However, the Secretary of the Interior and Mrs. Wilbur and the Secretary of Agriculture and Mrs. Hyde, who were receiving together at the Mayflower, had Vice President Curtis and Mr. and Mrs. Edward Everett Gann lingering with them for a large part of the afternoon. And there was a special flavor of friendliness at the homes of the Attorney General and Mrs. Mitchell and the Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis, who were also at home, as they have long been residents of Washington.

At the Hurleys there was a queue two blocks long most of the afternoon and within the house the guests had to be marshalled in a snake-like line, which wound back and forth across the drawing rooms. Everything, however, was managed with military precision. Tea was served in the dining room, with a punch bowl set up in the long sun room, where a whole row of little Christmas trees blossomed with colored lights. From here many of the Army contingent went to Fort Myer to attend a reception held by the Chief of Staff and Mrs. Charles P. Summerall.

Music by the Navy Band contributed to the gayety at the home of Secretary and Mrs. Adams. They received in a small drawing room, assisted by their daughter, Mrs. Henry Morgan, and by Mrs. Adams' sister, Miss Alice Lovering, leaving the big drawing room, from whose walls portraits of distinguished forebears look down, for a general assembly room. The dining room looks out upon a terraced garden and, with the air like summer, many of the guests took their tea out on the terraces.

The Secretary of Labor and Mrs. Davis had the heads of bureaus of the Labor Department lined up to receive with them, with their wives assisting in the dining room, and after the reception they entertained the group at an informal buffet supper. Each of the cabinet hostesses was assisted by a charming group of ladies, the wives of officials of her husband's department predominating.

Many of the diplomats joined with the official world and his wife and groups from resident society in making the cabinet rounds, among those

Watch for the AUBURN Surprise Announcement
Jan. 5
Again all eyes are focused on Auburn. What will Cord do for 1930? The record of Auburn under his management has been one of amazing progress. Always daring to pioneer—to announce the unexpected. Always keeping ahead of competition. He just recently eclipsed all high-priced cars with his new Front Drive. Now what will Auburn announce? Auburn's policy is different. Auburn thinks only of how to design, build and price the kind of motor cars that the public wants, WHEN they want them. Because 1929 was Auburn's banner year, sales records broken month after month and the only manufacturer continually oversold, Auburn is in the position now to make the most sensational announcement for 1930.

The regular meeting of the Chapter will be held January 8 at the home of Miss Ethel Hayes.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederic D. McKenney are at the St. Regis in New York for a short stay.

Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Harding, of Scranton, Pa., are at the Ambassador Hotel for a few days.

Castle, Hoover Aid, Embarks for Japan

Special Naval Ambassador Says Japanese Want Disarmament.

San Francisco, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—William R. Castle, Jr., President Hoover's special Ambassador to Japan during the coming London disarmament conference, today was on his way across the Pacific. He sailed yesterday for Honolulu, where he will visit three days with his father before resuming his voyage to Japan January 9.

"The world wants peace," Mr. Castle said just before sailing yesterday, "and the world knows naval reduction will help peace. The conference, although there may be some dispute, will, nevertheless, be successful. Japan is really as anxious, all along the line, as the United States in regard to naval reduction."

He referred to the recent engineering congress in Japan as "A successful thing both from a scientific standpoint and for an understanding of each other."

Mr. Castle, for 12 years assistant secretary of State in Washington, recently completed an eight-month tour of Europe. He is regarded as an authority on the United States Navy. Traveling with him as secretary is Edward Page, Jr., of West Newton, Mass.

Mr. Castle said he would remain in Japan through the conference. He does not expect to return before next June.

"COMING EVENTS cast their shadows before"
(Thomas Campbell, 1777-1844)

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Why let over-indulgence ruin the flattering curves that make the modern figure so seductive? Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, light a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain the irresistible youthfulness of the modern figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate! ... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

Music From Britain Over Air Today

Hour's Program of London Orchestra to Be Broadcast 2 P. M.; Grand Opera 11 P. M.; Brevities 8:15 A. M.

The National Broadcasting Co., atmospheric conditions permitting, will rebroadcast an hour's program by the British Broadcasting Corporation National Orchestra from London, England, between 2 and 3 o'clock this afternoon. Station WRC will be in the hookup of stations.

A program of numbers by American composers will be presented during the hour from WRC at 10:30 o'clock tonight, with Richard Crooks, tenor, and Lawrence Tibbett, barytone, as the featured artists. A large orchestra, under the direction of Nathaniel Skilkret, will play the works of several young American composers, among them a new suite especially written for this program.

The complete offering follows:

Scherzo from "Indian Suite," MacDowell, orchestra; "Je Crois Entendre Encore," from "Pearl Fishers," Bizet, Richard Crooks; Stephen Foster Medley, orchestra; prologue to "Pagliacci," Leoncavallo, Lawrence Tibbett; "A Vaudeville," Emerson Whithorne, a composition written especially for Mr. Skilkret and performed for the first time on this program, divided into four parts: "The Dublin Tapsters," "The Four Flamingoes," "Mr. Hwang Fu and His Oriental Blossoms," and "The Three Flashes;" "Soliloquy," and "From the Canebrake," orchestra; "Song of Songs" and "I'm Falling in Love With Someone," Richard Crooks; "Mardi Gras," from Grofe's "Mississippi Suite;" "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms" and "Rogue Song," Lawrence Tibbett; duet, "Crucifixion," Stainer, Richard Crooks and Lawrence Tibbett; medley of Gershwin numbers, and "Skyward," a march by Skilkret.

A gala operatic concert, presenting the artists who have appeared during the current season with the National Grand Opera Company, will be heard at 11 o'clock tonight from WRC. Selections from operas offered by the company will comprise the program.

Oliver Smith, tenor, will sing "Celeste Aida," "To a Wild Rose," "Love Ne'er Came Night" and "Starlight, Star Bright" during the program at 9:30 o'clock from WRC.

The Selberling Singers have arranged the following for presentation at 9 o'clock:

"Entr'acte" from "Naughty Marietta," male quartet; "Flower Song" from "Carmen," tenor solo, James Melton; piano solo, Frank Black; "Great Day," male quartet; "Drink to Me Only With Thine Eyes," James Melton; "Lullaby," Scott, singing violins, and "There's Religion in Rhythm," male quartet.

Recounting from the police angle the search for the slayer of "The Onyx Girl," beautiful artists' model; the detective mysteries at 9 o'clock from WMAL will reenact an actual criminal hunt.

Stories of old Russia, dramatized and set to music, will be presented by Peter Billo and his Balalaika group when "Around the Samovar" is presented at 9:30 o'clock.

Will Osborne's orchestra will entertain from 11:30 o'clock until midnight over WMAL, preceded by the Dream Boat feature.

"Breakfast Brevities" from The Washington Post will be broadcast at 8:15 o'clock this morning from WOL. "How to Live Happily on Your Income" is the subject of a talk by Peggy Clarke at 10 o'clock.

A program of luncheon music will be broadcast at noon, followed by an organ recital at 12:30 o'clock. Merle Patschke, mezzo soprano, will be presented at 6:03 o'clock. Estelle Wentworth, Jimmie Harbison and Estelle Hunt Dean are among the later features scheduled.

DIAL FLASHES

By ROBERT D. HEINL

If ever the enforcement of the prohibition act, or the lack of it, spoke for itself it was over the radio New Year's Eve. If Senator Borah desired additional evidence of cross-country moistness he overlooked an opportunity if he did not record the whoopee picked up by the microphone.

Any grill whose performance was being broadcast from any one of a dozen or so cities would have served his purpose and he need not have had the professional ear of a prohibition agent or to have been a member of the President's crime commission to gather decided impressions of what was going on.

For instance, an announcer at one of the largest stations in the country located in a supposedly wet city was reading telegrams from listeners. One was from Montreal. Whereupon the announcer asked with an air of hilarity: "Do you think we ought to give those people up in Montreal some of our champagne?" He answered the question by saying, "No, we will drink it ourselves; they've got enough of their own."

Tuning in on radio stations throughout the country after midnight one would have thought, "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here," was the national anthem.

The highlight of the night and we believe one of the most remarkable broadcasts ever staged in the history of radio, was when the Columbia people a few minutes before midnight so successfully picked up the merrymaking atmosphere and the actual sounds of Broadway in Times Square in New York.

This came to us through Station WMAL. David Belasco in all his life never achieved such a realistic effect. To anyone who had ever been in the grand jamboree in New York New Year's, this was another thing which spoke for itself over the radio and so loudly that it drowned out our Washington celebration going on at the same time, which was itself a pretty husky observance from a noise standpoint.

Another surprise was the effective staging of Cheerio, who, we believe, was making his debut to a night audience. He was heard just before midnight over the National Broadcasting System and WRC.

It was more staid and in sharp contrast to most of the other celebrations, but it reflected the spirit of the season nevertheless and a presentation of such merit that it may serve to recall this unique figure of the air for other night performances.

It was also a great night for Rudy Vallee and the nasal sob singers' brigade. Vallee was even moved to make a sort of George M. Cohan speech thanking the radio audience for making him what he is.

The feature, "Dancing Across the Continent," famous dance bands playing in turn from New York, Chicago, Denver and winding up in Chinatown, San Francisco, became more or less monotonous due to the standardization of the jazz orchestras. To this writer they all sounded alike.

And none worse than the one which earlier in the evening returned the salutation of "Big Ben" striking the hour of midnight in London. For a background to this event an English orchestra played "Auld Lyng Syne" with dignity and fine effect. By the way of returning the courtesy, as we did on Christmas to Germany, Holland and Great Britain, we gave them a broadside of jazz which sounded as if it might have come from the jungles of Sulu.

One of the few serious efforts of the evening was an address by Sir Henry W. Thornton, K. B. E., an American by birth, chairman of the Canadian National Railways, from Station CNRM at Montreal.

"The closing weeks of 1929 have resulted in a depreciation of stocks and securities, and many have unhappily suffered," Sir Henry declared. "Some have emerged enriched in experience if impoverished in purse, and should the lesson prove permanent perhaps the experienc may be profitable.

"However, one may deplore such unfortunate experiences, the economic position of Canada is in no wise affected; the country and its resources have not suddenly altered in a few weeks."

It was one of the finest nights of the year atmospherically. Stations fairly rolled, it seemed possible to get almost anything, with static almost absent. That being true there was quite a shock for those who either remained up for the great event, or crawled out of bed for it, to learn that because of bad atmospheric conditions the Australian broadcast at 4 o'clock yesterday morning had been called off.

Washington listeners tuning in on WRC didn't learn even this much as due to some misunderstanding the announcer signed off without making any explanations. That the broadcast from a city half way around the world—and surpassing anything yet attempted—could not have been accomplished on this occasion was all the more regrettable because experimentally it has already been done with great success.

New year's listeners, however, were out of luck. Nevertheless allow us to predict that before 1930 is over not only will we be tuning in on Australia 11,000 miles away (almost three times as far as England) but at the rate international broadcasts are progressing much greater distances will be spanned.

A thing which is bringing this about—and in international broadcasting we are ahead of any other country—is the rivalry between the two chains. First the NBC extended its network to the Pacific Coast to be followed by Columbia. Then the NBC through its affiliations offered the United States a broadcast from England quickly followed by Columbia which added France.

The NBC countered by adding Germany and Holland and now has for its objective Australia. It will soon be, if it is not already, a race to see which will be the first to get around the world.

What Today Means to You

By MARY BLAKE

"CAPRICORN."

If January 2 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 11 a. m. to 1 p. m., from 4 p. m. to 5 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to 11 p. m. The danger periods are from 2 p. m. to 3 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to 9:30 p. m.

Astrological conditions on this date are very favorable, and efforts will not be made in vain. Push ahead! Travel! Success lies at the end of a journey. Everything favors those who help themselves. Many of your hopes are now likely to be realized.

The child born on this January 2 will not be born with an instinct for "fair play," and unless this precious gift is inculcated by careful training, it will start with a big handicap. It will be of a quick mentality, inventive and ingenuous. It will do its best during the second half of life.

You are very ambitious, but you are too impatient to let your destiny work its own way. You try to miss some of the rungs in the ladder leading to the land of your desires. You do not rely enough on your own self and efforts—you depend too much upon the knowledge and advice of others.

Wealth and social position mean a great deal to you, and you may try to woo them at the expense of the power to appreciate beautiful things and to enjoy simple pleasures. You may capture riches and a name in the social register, for you are clever, "lucky" and gifted with social charms, but it is doubtful if their acquisition will bring you contentment. You will always be chasing rainbows, until you learn the real value of things and of people. You only enjoy the little luxuries and changes which delight great masses of people in a half-hearted way.

You are naturally quick tempered, but the next minute your natural heartiness comes to the rescue, and you are ready to forgive everything and to make friends again. Beware of contracts and partnerships, as they do not augur well for one born on a January 2. The best for you is what you earn for yourself.

Successful people born January 2:

1—James Wolfe, British general.
2—Philip Freneau, poet, "the poet of the Revolution."
3—Hugh S. Legare, Secretary of State under Tyler.
4—Edward S. Martin, first editor of New York Life.
5—Cardinal Richelieu.
6—Miss M. Mary Thomas, educator.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Paris, Jan. 1.

Paris is backing up! As sure as you're alive, she is, she really is positively and absolutely backing up!

After all, so few women have beautiful backs! 'n then, of course, when they were quite chocolate colored, women and backs and all, they were a bit more interesting than they may have been before.

But what with the taste for bronze being on the wane, and the inevitable need of change, one finds milady viewing with ennui her own bare back and that of her sister.... and with interest the few startling decollete gowns that swoop, oh even further than that down the front.

More slim front area than shoulders and bosoms ..... but that front can be startlingly low. Don't ask me if I like it, because I might have to tell you no! But it's there just the same, and if you want to be, oh, terribly last-word and all that sort of thing, turn about face on your evening gowns.

The Couturiers.

Rodier: We should be, if we are not, familiar with this name because Rodier is called "The Wizard of the Loom," and produces the most beautiful woolen fabrics of the whole world—not only produces them but invents them. This name is pronounced "Row-de-ay," and the accent is on the last syllable.

• • • •

Bruyere offers a very smartly cut coat of beige and brown tweed, trimmed in a flat beige fur, and then .... makes a very chic turban of the tweed to wear with it. And then I sketch it for you ....and there you are.

• • • •

Stop puckering your brow at the thought of no lovely purse to carry with formal wear, which suddenly becomes necessary. You can make right now several varieties of purse elegance to tuck away and have ready for the occasion, the frock and ensemble. So-o-o inexpensively, too, and so quickly. Just send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the easy-to-follow instructions, which tell you how to make several very lovely evening bags.

• • • •

Flat furs have just this season won their way back to a respected place in the millinery world. Soft felts are given a warmth of appearance by touches of fur, if bulkiness is avoided.

But the fur on one's hat must never, never conflict with that trimming the coat. Unless it matches, it is out .... the ensemble must not be disturbed.

We're sure you'll enjoy the weekly Dare fashion letter in The Sunday Washington Post if you'll look for it each week.

WORK ON BRIDGE

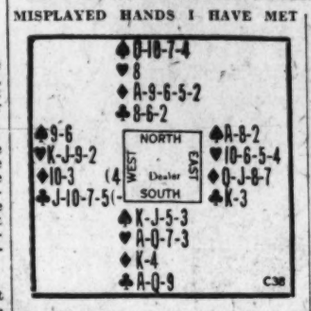
MISPLAYED HANDS I HAVE MET



The bidding of the above hand in Auction Bridge would be; South one No Trump, followed by three passes.

In Contract the bidding would be: South two No Trumps, North three No Trumps.

It would be unsound in Auction Bridge for North to show weakness by bidding two Diamonds as it is possible, although not probable, that game can be made at No Trump with North's help.

In Contract, with a bid of two No Trumps by South, North has enough help to bid three No Trumps and, as in Auction, to bid three Diamonds would be misleading.

When the hand was played, West led his fourth best Club. East played the King and South won with the Ace. The Declarer then started to establish his Spades. East won with the Ace and returned his partner's Club suit, and South held up his Queen until the third round.

The Declarer now was assured of three Spade tricks, one Heart, two Diamonds and two Clubs; he needed one more trick for game and determined that his best chance lay in finessing the Hearts. He tried the finesse, but West had the King and the adversaries took one Spade, one Heart and three Club tricks, saving game.

The Correct Play.

When East led the Trey of Clubs to trick 3, Declarer could tell that East had no more Clubs; if he had held a higher Club he would have led it, and he could not have a lower as the Deuce was in dummy. So Declarer should have won trick 3 with the Club Queen and then run his established Spades. On the last two Spades, West would discard a Heart and a Diamond; so that after trick 6 was completed Declarer could count the West hand with three Clubs and four other cards. These cards probably were two Diamonds and two Hearts, or three Hearts and one Diamond. Declarer having had seven Diamonds and only five Hearts, it was not likely that West with his long Clubs had held four Diamonds originally.

Declarer's best play would be to cash his King of Diamonds at trick 6 and win trick 8 with dummy's Diamond Ace. If it then looked to Declarer as if West had another Diamond, the Heart finesse could be tried; but if it looked or was assured (as it would be in this hand) that West had not another Diamond, game could be cinched by leading the last Club. This would force West, after winning his three established Clubs, to lead a Heart up to South's Ace-Queen.

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"Cynics."

"Are all women grafters," asks a wild-eyed correspondent who does not like his wife. And we smile at his childishness. Can you imagine a grown man writing the letter that follows, howling in rage over his own errors and blaming woman. What a man!

"Are all women fools or am I a marked man? I've had two wives. The first told me four days after the wedding that if she never saw me again it would be soon enough, and all because I would not divide my small bank account with her. Later she connived with the grocer to let bills run and spent the money I gave her instead of paying such bills. Finally she went back to her mother. Believe me I shed no tears, and she lost a good home.

"Now I am married to just such another. She never has a cent, no matter how much I give her. We never have food or cash in the house. Our meals are indifferently prepared and the house in constant disorder. I dislike my present wife intensely, but she will not leave me while I supply the things she wants. Now as it is neither one of us can enjoy life. Why could she not do the right thing, agree to a divorce and get some one more to her liking while I do the same. She vamped me into this and now all she wants is money, money.

"I met her at a house where I boarded and she was then very attractive and popular. Now—well, now she is just a crab and a useless hindrance. Our existence is a disgrace. Yet if I leave her she can claim my earnings and I can not remarry. If she had the wit to do her part we could have something out of life, or at least agree to separate and try new partners. She is just too dumb to know she is hurting herself by standing her ground and refusing to leave.

"TWICE MARRIED."

And here is a letter that this wild-eyed husband may read with profit:

"Dear Miss McDonald: You are doing a great deal of good by airing the opinions, impressions and what not of various readers.

"I was stung in the fascinating game of matrimony the first time. But why let bitterness play havoc with our reasoning facilities? We can become victims of unpleasant experiences, observations, etc., or we can become masters of all circumstances. But whatever we do let us think straight. A man gets burnt up in the stock market and in disappointment forgets to be logical and calls all men fools who play that ticklish game. At the same time he knows that certain men are more conservative than he and have dabbled more wisely in Wall street without dire results to themselves. It is just plain 'sour grapes.'"

These "Cynics' wands" are no novelty. However, they are not the tools or weapons of success in anything, business or matrimony. For matrimony is a business, the most serious one of life. To succeed at it, one must have wisdom, patience, consideration for the other fellow, a sense of fair play and above all, a sense of humor. If we get stung, having all these, we may suffer ourselves, but we will not inflict our misery and bitterness upon the world at large. We will be good sports and if we are men we will not conclude just from our own unpleasant experiences that all women are potential Jezebels. God forbid! We have mothers and sisters who believe in chastity and there are plenty of chaste and virtuous, loyal spouses.

Man has not put woman where she is, neither has woman put man where he is. Both sexes are human beings. Strange as it may seem, women are human beings and that is essentially all that a modern, sensible woman claims to be.

There are quitters, moral weaklings, both male and female and there are also brave and loyal ones of both sexes. Also there are gray sheep. That is what most men will not admit in their discussions or considerations of the gentler sex. But it is true. There are women who are both good and bad. The male wants to either put one of them on a pedestal or send her into the gutter. There are many who belong in neither place. Men are becoming wise to this fact. So don't let us become sour.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

OPEN FIREPLACES.

There is an abiding opinion that heating by an open fire is healthful, more so than other heating methods. When the advocates of this method are pressed for their arguments they commonly reply that an open fireplace ventilates—removes the impurities from the air. Against this the opponents of the method file a list of arguments. The method is wasteful.

Most of the fuel values of the coal, gas or wood escape up the chimney. It is dirty. Dust, composed largely of ashes and smoke, settles on the carpets, curtains and beds. It is troublesome making fires, and cleaning out ashes is an unpleasant job and help will not tolerate it. It is draughty heating. There are always currents of cold air from the windows and doors to the fireplace. It causes cold floors. The cold currents to the open fire travel along the floor.

It is uncomfortable heat, as it overheats one side of the body and chills the other. It is inefficient heat. In a room heated that way the space next to the walls is too cold for desks and typewriters; that next to the fire is too hot. It causes poor ventilation. The fresh air shortcuts from the window to the fire and leaves the general air supply uncleaned.

Then the advocate for the fireplace puts in some more evidence. He says the heat from such a fireplace is radiant heat. That radiant heat is superior to convection and conduction heat in that it contains ultra-violet and infra-red waves as well as heat waves.

He is reminded that infra-red makes up a part of the heat waves and probably both convection and conduction heat contain them. He then makes his stand on ultra-violet and some qualities of light not yet discovered. He reminds us that a few years ago we knew nothing about ultra-violet, X-rays or the wave length used by the radio. The probability is that a quarter of a century from now we will look back with contempt on our present knowledge of heat and light. And there the question must rest. He can not prove that open fireplace heat has these mysterious, unknown qualities. Neither can his opponents disprove the contention.

WHAT WHISKY ONCE DID.

J. C. B. writes:

1. Is there any medicine that can be used as a first aid to produce animal heat in the body when a person is threatened with a chill or seems unable to get warmed up?

2. How about nux vomica or strychnine?

3. Are the salicylates stimulants or depressants?

REPLY.

1. What you want is something to take the place of a drink of whisky, something that will fill your skin capillaries with blood and cause a feeling of warmth. Whisky did that. It made you feel warm, even though you were frozen stiff. Hot drinks have about that effect. The addition of aromatic spirits of ammonia to the hot drink increases the effect. There are other medicines which have this effect, but they are too powerful for general use.

2. Neither nux vomica nor strychnine is to be considered.

3. Salicylates are given for a wholly different purpose.

ESSAY ON CALOMEL.

G. L. writes:

1. What is calomel?

2. What effect does it have on the system?

REPLY.

1. Chloride of mercury. It is called the mild chloride to distinguish it from corrosive sublimate, the bichloride.

2. It is used as a purgative. It is generally followed by a saline. In tropical countries calomel is used considerably as a part of malaria treatment. Elsewhere it is not much used. Calomel is seldom used for any effect other than that noted above.

LITTLE YOUNG FOR EGGS.

Mrs. J. M. writes: Do you consider it correct to have hard boiled eggs in the diet of a seven months old baby, in preference to soft boiled?

REPLY.

As a rule, babies seven months of age are not given egg. However, some are, and with no harm done. There is no great difference between the digestibility of the two.

American Individuals Are The Masters of Prosperity

IT is the unified thought of individuals, as expressed through the ballot, that formulates national policies, and a similar unification of thought may easily be translated into national and individual prosperity . . . No business or governmental influence can ordain prosperity without the whole-hearted cooperation of individuals; no adverse influence is strong enough to withstand the tide of public opinion and public action when individual forces are exerted in a uniform direction.

PROSPERITY is the result of an unbroken circle of production and purchase. If goods are not purchased then production must cease. When production stops your neighbor's income is cut off and he can not purchase YOUR production . . . To assure personal prosperity there should be no curtailment of buying within any individual's means during 1930. The "butcher's" livelihood depends upon the buying ability of the "baker and candlestick maker"—keep the circle unbroken by buying NOW.

This Is the First of a Series Pointing Out the Power of the Individual for Creating National Prosperity

Make Today—"Tomorrow"

THE call is for immediate action—Make this the day in which you will buy those things, order those minor repairs, that you have been putting off 'til "tomorrow!"

Thrift is not so much a matter of saving as it is of wise spending. One saves money when he spends to best effect and at no time will your money be more powerful in its immediate, as well as in its far-reaching, effect as it will be today.

Perhaps you have a pair of shoes that could be repaired. Take them to the cobbler today! . . . Visualize the effect that could be obtained if scores or hundreds would act upon the same idea! Probably the cobbler would need to employ more help. He would be able to trade more extensively in YOUR store or to employ your professional services. Your dollar would pass from hand to hand throughout the day—buying necessities here, luxuries there—everywhere producing business volume, increasing confidence, leaving a measure of profit and returning to you as a portion of national prosperity that would be created by "unified thought put into action."

This idea is presented in the abstract, its vast ramifications and definite value will be evident to your own intelligence. Join in the program of wise spending advocated by The Washington Post, make Thursday the one day a week in which you will definitely meet your needs for the many things which you have been putting off until "tomorrow."

Dirt and Moisture cannot get into this machinery

WHEN the General Electric Research engineers set out to create a thoroughly dependable refrigerator, they knew exactly what to do.

They created an entirely new type of refrigeration mechanism. They succeeded in developing a motor so simple and efficient that it, together with all the rest of the machinery and a permanent supply of oil, could be sealed up tight . . . hermetically sealed . . . in a single steel casing.

This achievement is of supreme importance to you . . . it insures trouble-free, economical refrigeration in your home for many, many years.

Trouble-free . . . because no destructive elements can affect the General Electric mechanism. Dirt, dust, moisture cannot get into it.

Economical . . . because the chances of costly repairs or service charges are reduced practically to zero. Less current is used because the on-top mechanism allows the heat generated by the cooling process to be dissipated above the cabinet, instead of underneath.

General Electric Refrigerators have established the most amazing record ever heard of . . . in over three years, not one user has paid a single penny for repairs or service. The first cost has been the last cost.

Other General Electric advantages are its accessible freezing regulator, its all-steel warp-proof cabinet with more food storage space. It is easiest to clean, and simplest to install. Ask us to prove these advantages to your complete satisfaction.

Join us in the General Electric Hour broadcast every Saturday from 9 to 10 p.m., E.S.T., over a nation-wide N. B. C. network.

DEPUTY'S SHOOTING IS CHARGED TO FOUR

Retaliation for Raid He Led on Still Called Motive for Asault.

OFFICER IS NEAR DEATH

Whiteville, N. C., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Four men accused of shooting Deputy Sheriff Hoke B. Smith, of Columbus County, in retaliation for a raid he led on a whisky still were held in jail here tonight while officers awaited the outcome of Smith's wounds before lodging formal charges against them.

The deputy, paralyzed by two bullets which struck his spine, was in a Lumberton hospital, believed probably fatally wounded. He was wounded in the hip and arm.

Accused of the shooting are Pope Floyd, Hubert Floyd, Woodell Milligan and Seals Hill. Smith said they called him from his home, near Clarkton, last night and asked him to accompany them on a search for a stolen automobile. Suspicious of a plot, he refused, he said, and three of the men then grabbed him while the fourth emptied a revolver at him. The deputy also named the quartet as men he saw fleeing from a whisky still which he, with other deputies, seized yesterday afternoon in a swamp near here. Five thousand gallons of "mash" and several hundred gallons of whisky were destroyed at the still. Officers found a pistol at the scene of the shooting which they believe will aid in proving the four were at the deputy's home.

The pistol had the name "Pope Floyd" scratched upon it.

The four men were taken to Lumberton this afternoon and carried before Smith, who identified them as his assailants.

Although Smith said only one of the men fired at him, physicians who operated upon him late today said seven bullets were removed from his body and that all of them apparently did not come from the same weapon.

The wounded officer's condition would not permit a thorough probe of his wounds and physicians expressed doubt that all of the bullets had been removed.

BEHIND THE SCREENS

With NELSON B. BELL

IT ought to make a good picture—or maybe not, I wouldn't be certain. Human interest it has, surely. I mean the scene that I have passed every evening for the last week or ten days or so, well out Fourteenth street. It is just beyond that little jog in the road where Iowa avenue slithers in from nobody knows where, a block the other side of the Decatur street car barns.

Spanning a two-square frontage on the west side of the street from Emerson to Gallatin, there is a majestic structure with a great colonnaded entrance and as fine an example of landscape gardening as is apt to be found in the whole city of Washington, where reside a number of elderly gentlemen whose declining years are being spent principally in retrospective contemplation of the fullness of lives that are ebbing.

Living in the neighborhood, I happen to know that they are a cheery and companionable lot, anxious to strike up conversation with such neighbors as they happen to meet in their little strolls, or prowling in frank admiration among their spacious grounds. Well, these elderly youngsters have been having a Christmas tree.

Every evening in an ample assembly room—I take it to be that from a distance—in the south wing of the great rambling building, these white-haired kids have gathered about a towering and beautifully decorated tree and have rocked slowly back and forth in their comfortable chairs, probably recalling days that must be from 50 to 70 years in the past.

They don't jump around a great deal, these old boys, and I doubt if there are very many broken toys strewn about that big room. But I'll wager the place has been packed high with golden memories these last several days.

It ought to make a good picture—or maybe not, I wouldn't be certain!

Just to make sure, I went home and hunted up the soliloquy from the third part of Shakespeare's "Henry VI" and discovered, as I had suspected, that the original speech has been vastly altered for John Barrymore's purposes in the Warner Bros., gorgeous "Show of Shows," at the Metropolitan. Whether Mr. Barrymore chose to recite only those lines which he personally likes best, or used some condensed and partially emasculated version from some other acting script, I do not know, and, furthermore, do not care. It is still the one bit of flashing histrionic brilliance in the revue.

Speaking of the Fox, as nobody was, Leon Brusiloff, conductor of the symphony, played hookey last weekend and attended a hotsy-totsy house party up Philadelphia way. Returned New Year's, so I am told, with Dave Idzal to resume the baton.

And now that we are speaking of the Fox, it was my privilege to crack a cup of coffee with Horace Heidt and his Californians at the Press Club on Tuesday, as a guest of the Messrs. Meakin and Winchester, and my first impression gained from their stage appearance was then wholly corroborated. They are a dandy bunch of boys—clean cut, enthusiastic and alive with the spontaneity of collegiate youth. In this regard they put me in mind of Waring's Pennsylvanians.

Something of their proficiency as musicians, however, must be attributed to the fact that while attending the University of California they all majored in music, with the definitely preconceived idea of doing precisely what they have done—furnishing the American theater with a novelty orchestra the like of which it has never seen before.

Horace Heidt himself is an interesting and likable chap, graceful and polished, both on stage and off, and of obviously well-balanced education, the father of a 14-month-old daughter from whom he has been separated all but two months of her life through the perversity of theatrical bookings.

And as for that police dog, Loco, the pride of Clarence Moore, a member of the band, he is 4 years old and was trained from puppyhood by his present master. Psychologists at Columbia University recently rated his mental development as approximately that of an 11-year-old child.

But don't try to get clubby with him unless Mr. Moore tells both you and him it is all right. That is, unless you want to lose an arm or something.

Why do pulchritudinous young women permit themselves to become adagio dancers? It would be so much easier to step in front of a taxicab, or a street car, or maybe a passenger train!

The case of Enrico, of Enrica and Theodore, recently here with Earl Carroll's "Vanities," is still fresh in mind, and now I am informed on fair authority that the feminine member of the Andre De Val foursome, at the Palace, has been under the care of a prominent physician during the local engagement as a result of the strenuous—or worse—tossing about she is subjected to four times a day in pursuit of the daily bread.

She could have just as much run on a football team or in the prize ring!

When you attend the "Show of Showa," as of course you will, listen to the male voices in the pirate ensemble of the "Skull and Crossbones" episode that serves to introduce Ted Lewis and his band. It is the best bit of singing in the entire production, to my untutored notion, and reveals Noah Beery as the possessor of a bass voice that might well be utilized for solo purposes in a passage at least a little longer than two measures. The day after New Year's, perhaps "bars" is the word!

And that reminds me—there are still 364 days in which to abandon those New Year resolutions!

RIALTO

"HELL'S HEROES." A Universal talking presentation of Peter B. Kyne's story, "The Three Godfathers," adapted for the screen by Tom Reed, featuring Charles Bickford, Raymond Hatton and Fred Kohler. Directed by William Wyler. Reviewed Wednesday afternoon by W. A. Whitney.

Out of the wide open spaces of the great Southwest comes the Rialto's initial offering of the new year. That the picture ends at Christmas makes it all the more appropriate for this season.

A daylight bank robbery is staged, and, thanks to a convenient sandstorm, the holdup men make their getaway. On the desert they come across a covered wagon, apparently deserted save for a woman on the verge of motherhood and death. The baby, a boy, is born, the mother dies, and the three partners assume guardianship of the infant.

The desert takes toll of the buddies, one by one, until Bob, who from the first has been all for disposing of the baby, has the duty of taking the child back to the settlement where the robbery was staged. When about an hour away he is so nearly overcome by thirst that, realizing the morsel of humanity transcends his own mortal worth, he drinks at an arsenic well, which sustains him until he falls dead in the church while the parson is praying for forgiveness for transgressors.

Charles Bickford, in the role of Bob Sangster, is superb and gives the part most sympathetic treatment—a veneer of pitiless harshness over a character of sterling quality. Supporting Mr. Bickford are Raymond Hatton, as "Barbwire" Gibbons, and Fred Kohler, as "Wild Bill" Kearney, both of whom remove themselves when they realize that the water and scanty food supply is inadequate for the entire party. "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for a friend."

Far outweighing what little intrusion is made by sound effects is the photography which possesses remarkable clarity and definition. The direction and the handling of Mr. Kyne's novel are commendable.

Chief among the subsidiaries in the Tiffany Color Symphony, "The Enchanted Forest," a delightful dream fantasy with dances and songs by gnomes and wood nymphs of Lilliputian proportions compared with the charming little lass for whom the party is given.

Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy are presented as "The Night Owls," a hilarious comedy directed by James Parrott.

A release of the Universal News is noteworthy by reason of its pictorial resume of the outstanding events in the sporting world in 1929. Featured are Maj. Seagrave breaking the speed record, Sonnenburg's defeat of Strangler Lewis, Jack Sharkey's aspirations to the heavyweight title, Simpson, Ohio trackster; the dramatic run of Ellis, Dartmouth football star, and the big-moneyed horse, Blue Larkspur.

The Rialto Orchestra, under the direction of Ray Hart, accompanies the silent portion of the screen bill and offers thematic preludes to the subsidiaries.

Young Women, Dancing at Restaurant, Hurt by Celebrant.

An enthusiastic celebrant at the Lotus Restaurant, 727 Fourteenth street northwest, exploded a blank cartridge during the height of the New Year revelry early yesterday morning and three young women suffered powder burns on the legs.

The injured are: Miss Evelyn Burke, 21 years old, of 1617 Fifteenth street northwest; Miss Ray Gersher, 24, of 638 Alabama avenue southeast, and Miss Maud Wells, 21, of 1722 Lanier place northwest. All were treated by a private physician.

Police reported that the unidentified and enthusiastic celebrant was apparently on the crowded dance floor, when he fired the pistol.

On the Rules of Traffic

By WILLIAM ULLMAN

The District traffic regulations not only require the owner of an automobile to place on it two license plates, but it demands that they be in good condition so that the numbers may be seen plainly at all times.

If a tag is lost or mutilated the law requires the owner to report the occurrence to the superintendent of licenses within 24 hours so that a duplicate set may be issued. The old tags are cancelled immediately so that, in the case of loss, the finder can not legally display the old plates.

Example: A driver is in a collision with another car and damages his rear tag so badly that only half the lettering is legible. The next day he finds that he must use his car on an unexpected business trip and drives with the mutilated tag. That driver has violated the regulations.

KOOLMOTOR OIL

The Perfect Pennsylvania Motor Oil

CITIES SERVICE experts have scored another sensational automotive achievement!

They have perfected and produced a perfectly balanced motor oil—the NEW KOOLMOTOR OIL, which is now known to motorists throughout the country as the oil with 5 Point Balance.

5 Point Balance means the perfect relation to each other of the five tests of oil quality—viscosity, flash, fire, pour point and carbon residue. To you and your car this means the greatest motoring comfort, protection, power and economy that any oil has ever been able to give its users.

In establishing 5 Point Balance in Koolmotor Oil, Cities Service experts have eliminated the shortcomings in motor oil. They have perfected oil quality in all five of its tests. No one quality has been sacrificed to obtain a "showy" effect in another. For example, the new Koolmotor Oil flows freely at low temperature, but a rich, full body has been maintained at all temperatures. This same perfect balance has been held in relation to every test.

You can start today to experience the thrill of an oil that possesses 5 Point Balance. Drive to your nearest Cities Service station or dealer today—ask him to drain your crankcase and refill it with the new Koolmotor Oil.

35c—a fair retail price for the new Koolmotor Oil. The cost of lubrication is the smallest item in your operating and maintenance expenses. It pays to use the best.

III. THE GREGORIAN CALENDAR.

HAVE you wondered about leap year, and why an extra day is added to the calendar during such a year?

The reason goes back to this fact: While the earth is moving around the sun it spins in such a way as to make day and night, but does not make an even number of spins or "twists."

Pope Gregory Looking at New Calendar.

Fancy a top which is spinning while it goes around your head in a circle. Fancy that the top is the earth and that your head is the sun. Then you will have an idea of how and why daylight turns into darkness.

The earth twists a little more than 365 times during one complete journey around the sun. To be exact, the time in a year is 365 days 5 hours 48 minutes and 45½ seconds.

That is getting the time down to a fine point, isn't it?

Many persons say that the year contains "about 365¼ days," and that is true. We have leap years four years apart, when an extra day is placed in the month of February.

Since Roman times there have been leap-year dates in the calendar. These have helped to keep time straight, but in 1582 it was found that the calendar was in error by ten days. This was due to having had too many leap years. To make the calendar stay right, three leap years must be skipped every 400 years.

Two scholars, Ghiraldi and Calvius, learned about that in 1582 and made a report to Pope Gregory XVIII. The Pope ordered a change in the calendar. Ten days were "lost" to the people living in that year. People lived through October 4, and the very next day was called October 15 by the Pope's order.

Some of the Protestant countries in Europe wer not willing to obey the Pope for a long time. They kept the old-style calendar for a long time. Nearly 200 years passed before England adopted the calendar which is known in history as the Gregorian calendar.

KIDDERS OF 1924 MAY DELIVER ENCORE

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK, Jan. 1.—In the game of squawk and countersquawk between the major and minor owners of the New York Giants, the Hon. Francis Xavier McQuade has intimated that he will ask John McGraw to give further details of the famous scandal of the Good-Natured Kidders when the lawsuits come to trial. The scandal of the Good-Natured Kidders may be remembered as one of the diverting incidents of the baseball season of 1924, the year the Giants won their last pennant but lost the world series to the Washington Club.

Shortly before the date of the world series, Mr. Heinie Sand, of the Philadelphia National League Club, reported that Jimmy O'Connell, a second-string outfielder of the Giants, who was regarded as being not especially bright, had approached him with an offer of $500 which he said the boys of the Giant team had raised by general subscription, to refrain from bearing down in a final series of the regular league season. The Giants were what is termed a moral certainty to win the National League pennant at this time, but the members of the team could not feel at ease until the moral certainty had become a practical certainty. Although the Philadelphia club was regarded as a set-up, the history of the baseball business was strewn with disasters caused by set-ups.

O'Connell Admits Charges.

As soon as the information was communicated to K. M. Landis, he called a drumhead court at which Jimmy O'Connell naively admitted the truth of Heinie Sand's report and said he had acted as spokesman for the Giant players as a group. He named George Kelly, the first baseman, Pep Young, the outfielder who has since died, and Frank Frisch, then the captain and second baseman of the Giants, as among the players who had participated in the plant and also named Cozy Dolan, the broken-down outfielder, then attached to the Giants in the ostensible capacity of coach, but serving more often as a slugger or bouncer and house detective.

The slugging and bouncing duties of Mr. Dolan were a rather fulsome flattery to his merits as a fist-fighter, which were purely nominal. Your correspondent discovered this two or three years later when Mr. Dolan undertook to make a physical protest against some observations in the dispatches which he construed as wilfully unfriendly.

Mr. Dolan was lucky to get a draw with your correspondent, who was experimenting with a brand of cigarettes which were being endorsed for athletes by football coaches in a billboard campaign at the time. The advertisements were quite misleading and although your correspondent smoked about eighty of them every day for some weeks prior to the fight with Mr. Dolan, he was in very bad shape the night of the contest. So Mr. Dolan got a draw.

Nothing Ever Proved Against Dolan.

However, Mr. Dolan had served quite effectively with the baseball firm, being of the old school of ball club bouncer, who pointed their arguments with a sawed-off fungo-bat and up to the time that Judge Landis called him in to testify he enjoyed a good reputation to the extent that nothing has ever been proved against him. On this occasion, however, he faltered horribly and was found guilty by inference. That is to say when the Judge popped Heinie Sand's accusations at him and followed these up with Jimmy O'Connell's bland recountal implicating him, Mr. Dolan replied with such noncommittal phrases as "who Me?" and "What was that again, Judge?"

The others named by the O'Connell boy were much more alert mentally, they said O'Connell was a liar and as it was one man's word against theirs, these defendants got the benefit of a small but long-lived doubt. So the unfortunate outfielder, who was a gullible bumpkin of the type who pull the badger and hold the bag for the snipe on spring training trips, and the old house dick of the Giants were barred from baseball and the others were acquitted under a verdict reading, in effect "Not Guilty so far as we know."

Hilltop Five Beats N.Y.U., 31 to 27

Victory Puts Team in Yale Tourney Finals Aganist Elis.

Pupils of Ripley to Clash; Mesmer Is Star of Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Jan. 1.—As the reward for a surprising, though well-earned, triumph over New York University, 31 to 27, in the opening round here tonight, Georgetown's Basket Ball Team gained the right to play in the finals of the Yale tournament tomorrow night. The Blue and Gray Five will oppose Yale, which defeated Holy Cross, 28 to 20.

Thus, the battle for the tournament honors became strictly an affair between pupils of the well-known former professional star and coach, Elmer Ripley, who coached this same Georgetown Team last year and is instructing Yale's Quintet this winter.

New York University always had been victorious over Georgetown in basket ball. Coach Howard Cann's team was the only one that defeated Georgetown during the season of 1927-1928, while last season it won two games from the Hilltop crew. One of that pair was captured in the final contest of the Yale tournament.

Georgetown Holds Command.

Tonight Georgetown led nearly throughout, with Freddy Mesmer, scrappy little guard, giving a sterling individual exhibition. Mesmer garnered six field goals and played a strong defensive game besides. Shuman, of N. Y. U., was the leading scorer of the game, but his work as a whole failed to equal Mesmer's.

Georgetown's five-man defense proved too strong for N. Y. U. in the first half, the Hilltoppers drawing away to an 18-11 lead before the intermission. Walter Morris contributed seven of Georgetown's points with a pair of field goals and three fouls. Shuman shouldered the burden of New York's attack, accounting for eight points in this period.

For a short time in the second period it looked as if Georgetown would stage a runaway of things when Mesmer and Dutton scored five points between them to run the score to 23-11. At this point the Violets finally broke through and brought their total to 17 by sinking three fielders in rapid succession. After Georgetown registered another two-pointer, Shuman put on a one-man attack that deadlocked matters at 25-25.

Mesmer's Field Goal Is Decisive.

Again Geoergetown took the lead as Morris dropped a field goal, but again Shuman tied the count. Some furious playing then ensued with prospects of an extra period looming, but a few minutes before the last whistle Georgetown collected the winning points on a field toss by Mesmer and foul throws by Morris and McCarthy.

JACOBS WINS JUNIOR NET HONORS

By TED VOSBURGH.

New York, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—In a dramatic five-set struggle, Billy Jacobs, of Baltimore City College, today won the national junior indoor tennis championship by conquering the "dark horse" sensation of the tournament, Lanky John Richardson, of Dartmouth. The scores were 6—3, 6—2, 2—6, 7—5, 6—3.

The national boys' indoor championship went to a little New York stylist, Marcus Hecht, of Dewitt Clinton High School. Defeating Bernard Friedman, of West Philadelphia High School, in straight sets, 6—3, 6—2, Hecht gained the honors formerly held but not defended by Kendall Cram, of Nashville, Tenn., without having lost a single set in the entire tournament.

Friedman, holder of the Middle Atlantic States junior and boys' titles, elected to drive from near the baseline. This style proved made to order for Hecht who often drew his opponent wide of position and sent sharp-shooting placements far out of his reach.

Parker-Verstraten Win Doubles.

Frankie Parker, of the Milwaukee Country Day School, and Giles Verstraten, of the McBurney School, New York, won the boys' doubles final, defeating Friedman and Hecht at 7—5, 6—3.

In junior doubles the honors went to Sandy Davenport and Richard Downing, of the West Side Tennis Club, who turned back Donald Frame, Harvard, and Fred Roll, Mercersburg Academy, 6—4, 6—4, 6—8, 7—5.

Marked by thrilling rallies and counter rallies, the junior singles final had the small gallery of 200 fans on the edge of their seats, from the moment in the third set when Richardson began to make a fight out of it.

The more experienced Jacobs, his playing marked by perfect form, had clicked off the first two sets without great difficulty before Richardson struck his stride and launched a furious volleying attack.

After the intermission, Jacobs applied more pressure and reeled off the first four games in a row, but this scrappy Dartmouth sophomore, who has been spilling favorites all through the tournament, apparently fights hardest with the odds against him.

Richardson Turns Tide of Match.

Rushing to the net at every opportunity for smashing overhead kills or deft half-volleys, Richardson turned the entire tide of the match by winning five of the next six games, then going on to take the set, at 9 to 7. For the first time since the start he stood on even terms with his adversary.

For the first several games of the deciding set neither player could win his service. But Richardson's aggressive forcing tactics had taken more out of him than had Jacobs' well-rounded game, and it was the Baltimore youth who came through in the crisis. Taking the last three games in a closing rush he won match and championship.

Although Richardson, always the last ditch fighter, carried the last two from Love—40 to Deuce before he lost them on errors traceable to near exhaustion.

In winning the junior crown, young Jacobs succeeded where his older and better-known brother, Eddie, failed, having been beaten in the final for this same crown by Julius Seligson in 1925.

France Wins at Rugby; 17 Are Knocked Out

Paris, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—France defeated Scotland, 7 to 3, in the first international Rugby match of 1930. It was one of the roughest contests in years on a Paris field. There were seventeen knockouts in the course of the game, exceeding the number in some boxing seasons in Paris. Many penalties were inflicted, and France finished the match with only thirteen players, instead of the usual fifteen. Scotland had fourteen when the match ended.

Racing at Pompano Planned Saturday

Pompano, Fla., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—A fourth reorganization for presenting racing at the Pompano race track here was perfected this afternoon after postponement of the inaugural program scheduled under the auspices of the East Coast Jockey Club. With John Bockley, promoter for the East Coast Club, still absent and no word received from him, there were no races today and a confreence of Pompano business men and farmers in the vicinity was called to arrange a program beginning Saturday.

Sufficient funds were subscribed at the conference to insure a brief meetnig. C. L. Brown, Pompano member of the Broward County School Board, was elected president of the organization to sponsor the meet. Steve Steinmets, track manager, and H. B. "Jimmie" Munroe, racing secretary and steward, were retained.

Seven races have been scheduled for Saturday by the new organization. There were 90 horses in the stables today and 60 more are expected to arrive from the Hialeah track near Miami tomorrow, officials of the new organization said tonight.

RULES CHIEF POSITIVE ON FUMBLE

Ruling in Grid Code to Stay, Declares E. K. Hall.

By ALAN GOULD.
(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—The new and much-discussed fumble rule, for the firs time in 1929, has come to stay in the gridiron code. This was made clear and emphatic today by Edward K. Hall, of New York, chairman of the national football rules committee, in his annual report to the National Collegiate Athletic Association.

The rules committee, as a matter of fact, contemplates no changes for 1930, beyond such technical revisions and classifications as may result from the completion of the recodification of the whole rules book. The attitude of the committee, as expressed by Mr. Hall, thus coincides with the views of football coaches who went on record Monday as opposed to any changes in the regulations for the new year.

Mr. Hall's report asserts the evidence of 1929 play was overwhelmingly in favor of the new fumble rule which prevents the opposing side from running with a recovered fumble of any kind.

Extension of Rule Suggested.

If anything, the committee may discuss extending it, proposals already having been made by some coaches that the rule be applied in principle to prevent running with intercepted forward passes, also to prevent an attacking side from advancing its own fumble.

Mr. Hall's report, in summing up

Big Stadia, $18,000 Coaches Flayed at College Meeting

NEW YORK, Jan. 1 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—A great, bulking man with the ruddy face of an athlete and the square shoulders of an Army colonel, stood on a platform in the north ballroom of the Hotel Astor today and told a group of executives in that prosperous business, college athletics, what he thinks of $18,000 salaries for football coaches, of overgrown stadia, of all the pomp and circumstance of super-football.

Frank Parker Day, president of Union College, does not believe in mincing words. He does not like these $18,000 salaries, these overgrown stadia, and he said so. Told these men who are making a living as professional coaches of amateur teams that professional coaches of amateur teams should get out of the university and college, and stay out. Instead, he seeks "truly amateur" college athletics, with amateur coaches.

One of the professional coaches he told this to was Lou Little, recently acquired director of football at Columbia, with whose name the $18,000 salary has been occupied in press reports.

These members of the National Collegiate Athletic Association now know that some one has gone a step further than the Carnegie Foundation in its bulletin 23, that some one offers definite suggestions for combatting the gold rush in college sports.

Here are his proposals:

"First, that we stop making money and do away with gate receipts. Second, that we give up professional coaching, scouting, subsidizing, directing from the sidelines, and come back to amateur coaching. Third, that leagues be formed among local colleges that wish to play truly amateur athletics. And fourth, that no compensation of any kind whatsoever be given to college players who participate in stadium games. Fifth, that all our athletic dealings be open and above board and in the full light of day, and that our ideal be to give every student in college a chance to participate in athletics."

Nor does Dr. Day rest his case here. He proposed to form a league of colleges and practice these precepts.

"Of course," he told the meeting, "it is very difficult to see how the big universities that have built or are building stadia and are under the necessity of paying interest on their bonded indebtedness for costruction can retrace their steps without serious los sof money.

"I have been hoping for some years that the big and well established universities in the East like Harvard Yale, and Princeton would lead the way out of this athletic maze in which we are now wandering. There seems to be no sign of this, however, and it was with sinking heart that I recently read in the paper that the great University of Columbia had engaged an $18,000 coach to train her football players."

Panther Team Outclassed Greatly

the first half, the Panthers came back in the third quarter to score a touchdown and push over another in the last period.

Warm weather marked the fourteenth renewal of the Tournament of Roses game, but the heat was not as much a handicap to the Eastern players as the fact that they were overwhelmed by an attack that brooked no opposition.

Adds to Coast's Superiority.

And so, in a decisive fashion, Southern California met and matched the final challenge of a football season and postseason that has seen far Western colleges conquerors six times while allowing four victories to opponents from the sun rise side of the Rockies.

Recapitulation of the big intersectional contests this season shows that:

California defeated Pennsylvania, Oregon State vanquished Detroit, Southern California trounced Carnegie Tech, Stanford shattered the hopes of Army, Southern California's windup against Pittsburgh. To the other side goes: Notre Dame's win over Southern California, Chicago's defeat of Washington and Florida's setback to Oregon.

The first period was crammed with as many thrills as many complete games, and had the spectators gripping their seats as Troy's men of football stormed the ground defense of their opponents for long gains and flipped passes with amazing accuracy to score two touchdowns.

Uansa Dashes 68 Yards.

Pitt threatened once and that on the first play of the game when Toby Uansa, all-American half back, slipped through Southern California's left tackle and scampered 68 yards down the field before he was hauled down 14 yards from scoring turf. In the clear, the squat Panther star could not generate enough land miles per hour to leave behind the Trojan safety man, Saunders.

Pittsburgh rooters thundered their approval as the Smoky City squad lined up for action within such easy striking distance. The ecstasy was short-lived, however, three line plunges netting six yards and Uansa's pass to Donchess fell incomplete over the goal line.

Six minutes after the start of the game, Southern California crossed the last yard mark of its rival for the first touchdown. Saunders shot the ball straight over the center of the line for 25 yards, where Edelson, left half back, plucked it from the air and raced 30 yards to score. Uansa was caught napping on the play. Shaver place kicked the try for point.

Pitt Fumble Aids in Third Score.

Two more Trojan touchdowns followed in the second quarter. A Pittsburgh fumble paved the way for game's third score. Clark, subbing for Parkinson at fullback, dropped the oval on his own 27-yard line. Eager hands juggled the ball on the 18-yard mark where Arbelbide, Trojan end, fell on it. Duffield, replacing Saunders, passed to Hill for a first down on the 6-yard line. The Trojan quarter back crashed over on the third play. The try for extra point failed.

The crowd had hardly settled back in their seats when Southern California scored again. Duffield threw one 23 yards to Mortenson, who ran 27 yards. Three yards from goal, Duffield bored through center to make the touchdown. Baker made the place kick try for point that brought the count U. S. C., 26; Pitt, 0, before the half ended.

After the half-time rest the Trojans exhibited the same zip and drive that marked the preceding periods and in the next 15 minutes rolled over two more touchdowns. Pitt scored, too, in the session to assure it at least from the ignominy of a "whitewash."

Trojans March 45 Yards.

After an exchange of kicks, Southern California marched 45 yards in eight plays to score. Saunders, who packed the ball 35 of the yards, went over. The try for point was successful.

A desperate rally by the Panthers saw a 56-yard thrust converted into a touchdown. It was featured by Walinchus' 16-yard run that put the ball on Southern California's 29-yard line. Baker passed to Uansa for a 12-yard gain, and Uansa tossed one to Walinchus, who snagged the ball over the goal line. Parkinson made the place-kick try for point.

The Trojans came back with a smash that had its answer in another score. From their 31-yard line, bucks

NORTH WINS DIXIE GRID GAME, 21-12

Hackman, Tennessee, Scores Thrice in South's Defeat.

By DILLON L. GRAHAM.

ATLANTA, Ga., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—A slim, phantom-like half back, Buddy Hackman, of Tennessee, flashed brilliantly across the gridiron here today to lead the Blue Eleven from the northern division of the Southern Conference to a decisive victory over the Cardinal squad of the South in the Shrine charity game at Grant Field.

An estimated crowd of 20,000 attended the contest, the proceeds from which go to four crippled children's hospitals in Dixie.

The elusive Hackman, a dangerous threat whenever he handled the ball, scored all of the Blue's three touchdowns. Two of his goalward jaunts resulted from rifle-like passes from his Tennessee teammate, Bobby Dodd. His other scoring venture followed a 44-yard off-tackle run through the entire Cardinal Team.

After being held scoreless for three periods, the Southern Cardinals finally mustered a 40-yard touchdown drive early in last quarter, with Dunlap, of Georgia Tech, substitute for McEwen, of Florida, slipping over center for the counter. Another march late in the period, this time for 70 yards, climaxed by a 22-yard pass over the goal line from Dunlap to Jones, Georgia Tech end, gave their last score.

Big Guns Fall Short Of Expectations.

The heralded big guns of both squads were effectively silenced. Gene McEver, of Tennessee, who led the Nation in scoring the past season; "Shipwreck" Kelly, of Kentucky, and Warner Mizell and Stumpy Thomason, of Georgia Tech, were stopped with little gain. A red-haired will o' the wisp, Leroy Bethea, of Florida, substituted for Mizell, showed the way to the Cardinals, gaining 79 yards in seventeen attempts. The Blues had a decided advantage in that Maj. Bob Neyland, the Northern squad coach, started an almost complete Tennessee team. Three backs and four linemen, including both ends, were available to lead the way in carrying through Tennessee plays which Neyland employed for his squad.

Near the end of the first period, after several scoring opportunities had been lost through fumbled passes, Dodd shot a 24-yard floater to Hackman, who streaked down the sidelines for 20 yards and the first touchdown.

Hackman's Fancy Running Scores.

After an exchange of kicks, Hackman cut loose again and was gone on another touchdown trek. He started off left tackle, slipped past the scrimmage line and cut back to the right, eluding several would-be tacklers and scampered 44 yards across the goal line.

The play centered around midfield most of the second half, but late in the third period the Cardinals tossed away their first chance to score when Bethea fumbled on the 11-yard line after having led a 30-yard advance.

Picked Coast Grid Team Routed

55,000 See Naguraki, Cannon Also Star in Charity Game.

By HERBERT A. YOCOM.

KEZAR STADIUM, San Francisco, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—In as smashing a triumph as has ever featured this annual New Year's Day charity game between elevens comprising the pick of Eastern and Western football stars, the East rode roughshod to a 19 to 7 victory over the West here today.

More than 55,000 spectators banked high around the stadium's edge, saw a great collection of all-American players grouped on one team, smash and crash their way through the Western line for huge gains and take to the air for long advances time and again.

Only once during the contest did the West, which entered the game as favorite, show any semblance of the form expected. That was at the start of the second half, when brilliant dashes by Benny Lom, of California, and Sloan, of Nebraska, brought the ball to the two-yard line. From there Sloan crashed over guard for a touchdown and Clark, of Colorado College, kicked the goal to give the West its only points.

Peters Repeats Earlier Field Goal.

A nochalant young man known to his Illinois classmates as Frosty Peters played an impressive part in the Eastern victory. Twice during the game he booted the pigskin between the uprights for field goals. Standing on the West 35-yard line in the second period he calmly lifted the ball to a score. Rushed into the battle again in the final period, when the West had fought the Easterners to a standstill, he repeated to chalk up the final tally for his team.

Jack Cannon, Notre Dame's unanimous all-American selection, closed his college career with as outstanding an exhibition, at guard, of all-around playing as has ever been seen here. He was here, there and everywhere time and again breaking through the Western line to throw ball carriers for losses. His team mate, Twomey, and Booma, of Dartmouth, Glassgow, of Iowa, and practically all the other Eastern players, turned in performances that compared favorably with that of Cannon.

Boona Scores on Forward Pass.

The East made its first score with a forward pass from Peters to Booma, the Dartmouth end romping 25 yards to a touchdown. Bronco Nagurski, Minnesota's versatile line and backfield star, had placed the East in scoring position on a smashing play through guard for 21 yards.

Shortly after the second period opened the East got the ball on the West 24-yard line as the result of an intercepted pass by Peters and line plunges by Nagurski and Glassgow. Peters, whose trusty toe on several occasions has brought victory to Illinois, then booted the team from the East to its second score with a looping dropkick that carried 45 yards.

Near the end of the first period, Long dashes through the line by Nagurski and Glassgow with Cannon and Twomey clearing the way led to the East's second touchdown, Glassgow crashing over right tackle from the 6-yard line to score, and Peters kicked the goal.

West Launches Drive In Comeback.

Coming back in sensational fashion, the West scored in a hurry to start the third period. Lom made 9 yards on the first play and Waldorf, of Missouri, packed the ball for a first down. Two more plays failed to gain, however, and the East got Lom's hurried punt on its opponents' 40-yard line. Waldorf recovered an Eastern fumble, and the West started a drive which was not halted until the goal line was reached. Clark kicked the extra point for the West.

Failure to Live Up to Ring Boasts Hurt Prestige.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

ART SHIRES, White Sox first baseman, who was baseball's bad boy last season, appears to have just about reached the end of his string in the fight racket and it is a moot question whether or not the reaction following his flyer into the cauliflower industry will affect his value on the diamond in the future.

Never popular because of his braggadocio manner and his insistence that everything he did was in a "bigger and better" way, his victories in the squared circle, his constant challenges to other players and the enlargement of the ego which is bound to result because he knocked out two unheard-of mittmen, are sure to add to his personal obnoxiousness and to bring him into plenty of fist exchanges in 1930.

Judging from the statements he has made in connection with his ring bouts, adulation has turned his head—if it weren't already turned—and he probably will take the mental slant that, being the good fighter he thinks he is, it will be up to him to prove it whenever opportunity offers. If a pitcher comes close to him with a wild pitch, a base runner accidentally knocks into him, or some other type of everyday contact, or near contact, results, Shires may be expected to start a fight. And, knowing his feelings on the subject, other players who know how to sling their fists effectively, are not liable to give the ground to Shires which they would to some one else.

Bush Has Issued Ultimatum.

Donie Bush, new manger of the Chisox, already has shown that he expects to have trouble with Shires by announcing what will happen to the player if he takes a poke at Bush, as he did on two occasions at Russell "Lena" Blackburne, 1929 leader.

And indications are that Shires will not find himself particularly popular with the fans. Last season he attracted plenty of attention from the cash customers, but of the jeering, rather than the cheering kind. His escapades were in the main charitably regarded by baseball followers, who took the view that he was a fiery Southern youth with personality and vigor, whose greatest fault was his inability to control his temper.

Even after his second attack on Blackburne, baseball followers made allowances. They knew he was guilty of wrongdoing in attacking a manager who was merely trying to keep order on his team, but again placed the blame on the so-called impetuosity of youth.

Shires made himself a character by his unceasing banter, his double-sized oud of chewing tobacco and his showmanship in gaining the attention of the fans in the stands. He invariably was the cynosure of all eyes and was fast gaining a notoriety that made him a drawing card. He was excused again and again, but never seemed to learn his lesson.

Shires Lowly Rated As Fighter.

Despite his shortcomings, Shires' personal appeal did not suffer until he turned professional fighter, without any boxing equipment except a sturdy body and a "loud speaker." A fight manager quickly bobbed up to take him over, willing to capitalize on his notoriety and caring nothing for his baseball future. A few quick purses and Shires could leave the ring a wreck, for all his manager cared.

When Art knocked out his first foe, a fellow even greener than himself, baseball fans showed more than an ordinary amount of interest. Then Bratton, a big pro grid player, but another greenhorn in the ring, gave Shires a thrashing. This gave the fans a pick-up chat, despite his ability to tell how good he was, he is just a plunk as a ringman, and his quick knockout of another fledgling of the boxing game has not changed their opinion.

Although Shires has declared that he is of championship caliber, it is noted that he now desires to confine his efforts in bouts with other ballplayers. His challenge to Hack Wilson, who had beaten up some Cincinnati players just for the pleasure of the task, failed to net a match, because President Veeck, of the Chicago Cubs, stepped in and forbade his center fielder to accept. Al Spohrer, Boston Braves' catcher, finally fell, and these two are matched to meet in Boston on January 10.

Art to Be on Defense.

Baseball and boxing blend as far as the fans are concerned, and the average diamond addict enjoys seeing a fight and often does so, but they do not mix from the players' angle. From now on Shires likely will find himself on the defense. Fellow players will feel that, in view of Art's ring flyers, they can not afford to take anything from him lest they appear to be afraid of him.

If Shires returns to the White Sox and becomes pugilistically inclined with a mate or with Manager Bush, he faces heavy punishment, even possible permanent expulsion from the game by club officials. And, as the baseball chiefs are becoming tired of his contempt for order and decency in baseball and fans are wearied of his colossal nerve and sickening boasting, trouble with players of other clubs will bring him plenty of trouble of his own.

All in all, it looks as though Mr. Shires is in for a tough season, for he can no more curb his tongue and drop his bully manner than can a leopard change its spots.

SEEK FRIDAY GAMES.

The Clark Griffith 100-pound Five has the Macfarland Gym every Friday night from 7 to 8 o'clock and would like to arrange games. Call Manager Lessner, Columbia 3781. The Y. M. C. A., Nehi and Hess Fives are especially challenged.

COLLYER'S COMMENT on the SPORT of KINGS

BY BERT E. COLLYER

GOOD THINGS! Notwithstanding the uncertain condition of the track down at the Fair Grounds, your old Uncle Bertram managed to slip you a few hot ones, and this is just a sample of what you are going to get during the remainder of the new year. For this aft I offer several that seem particularly well aspected. No, I know they won't be 15-to-1 shots—the sure thins never are—but a 5-to-2 bet that you cash is much better than a push in the face, if you know what I mean.

To come down to the business at hand, I am especially high (and maybe you were, too, just lately) on MONTICELLO, a maiden that goes in the first. This trick has just missed in no less than three occasions, and it looks like taking candy from a child.

COMET, which was just a nose behind TADDYWAWA Tuesday, is taken to come back and grab the verdict in the fifth, and the same goes for FORCE, another that received a "conditioner" the same day. As regards the latter, I have it direct from the fodder trough that today is the day, and the disetnce fits him right down to the ground.

The programmed feature is billed as the fourth, and seems made to order for THE SOUTHERNER. No better than a second-rater, this trick is at tops and has only to repeat his recent victories over Scotland to grab all the bacon.

Down at Oriental Park, no less than three mavericks seem good enough to cop the cranberries. They are TIMEKEEPER, BREAKAWAY and TOMMY LAD, which go in the second, third and fourth, respectively.

Just received a flash from the Sunny Isle that JOAN SHIRLEY, which was scratched out of the first yesterday, will be the old wopsey tiger in the initial heat this aft. Now you know as much as I do, and if you're not solid ivory from the shoulders up, you'll have your two meggs riding slam bang on the ole beezer. No more resolutions.

M'GRAW DUE TO TELL OF SCANDAL

1924 Kidding Act to Find Place in Giants' Trial, Is Hint.

But doubt has always persisted because of various curious circumstances. For instance, young Mr. Frisch, the captain, elaborated his testimony to say that while there was absolutely no guilty scheming in the Giants' club-house, there had been a lot of good-natured kidding around among the boys. The boys' idea of humor ran pretty much to innocent sallies about how pleasant it would be if their opponents would refrain from bearing down, but nevertheless it was all kidding, in the best of nature.

Some people seem to be kidding when they are quite in earnest and others seem to be in earnest when they are only kidding around and the question has always remained for each person to answer for himself: "Were they kidding or were they conniving?"

Another remarkable circumstance was the tolerant patience with which one of the athletes named by O' Connell submitted to a violent personal denunciation of himself, his immediate forbears, his tastes in diversion and other affairs too intimate to mention, as O'Connell's parting word to organized baseball. The subject of O'Connell's remarks was a quick-tempered, fighting ballplayer who would have been expected to kill O'Connell for less than half of what he said in the presence of various other persons. But O'Connell delivered these respects unchallenged leaving all present to infer what they might infer.

Still on Calling List Of McGraw.

Then, also, Mr. Dolan seemed to live on quite comfortably for one whose means of a livelihood had suddenly been canceled and there was much interested speculation as to the possible source of his income. His relations with the ball club ceased, of course, but I do not believe McGraw renounced him personally. Mr. McGraw is rather stubborn and not a man to permit official authority to censor his calling list.

It puzzles me to hear from the Hon. Francis Xavier McQuade counsel that McGraw may be asked, at this late date to give further details of the Scandal of The Good-Natured Kidders. He undoubtedly means to imply that Mr. McGraw never told all he knew and from this, I take it that Judge McQuade must know something about the affair which he never has told before. If that is the case I wonder what deterred him from telling it long ago, in view of his status as a baseball magnate, a steward of clean sport in the national game, and judge of the New York police courts.

COURT WORK RESUMED AT V.A.

Tossers Back Today Prepping for First Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., Jan. 1.—Virginia's basket ball team, which resumes training tomorrow after the Christmas recess, will have only four practice periods before opening the 1930 season here next Wednesday against Duke University.

Last year the Cavalier Quint lost the season's starter to Randolph-Macon, but defeated Duke 35 to 23 two nights later. In that game the Blue Devils were without the services of Joe Croson, who later became their scoring ace.

Roy Randall, who is coaching the Virginia basketers, had only a few workouts before first term examinations interrupted training. He will be forced to decide upon his starting line-up at the initial practice if he is to have any sort of team play against Duke.

Fine Last Year's Frosh Team Available.

Capt. Hartwell Harrison, who will play center; Andy Merle, forward, and Dave Stouder and Jack Roberts, guards, are all veterans of last year. In addition there will be the regular line-up of the freshman team that lost only one game last season, and that by a single point. Lem Hayo and Herbert Bryant, forwards; Bill Thomas and Bob Manley, guards, and Jim Delafield, center, composed this team.

Fifteen games are included in the revised Virginia schedule. The Cavalier Quint plans to enter the Southern Conference tournament in Atlanta.

Jan. 8, Duke, at home; 9, St. John's, at home; 14, Maryland, at home; 16, William and Mary, at home; 21, Richmond, at home; 24, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, at home; 25, Washington and Lee, at home; 28, Virginia Polytechnic Institute, in Blacksburg; 29, Virginia Military Institute, in Lexington; 31, North Carolina State, at home.

Feb. 7, North Carolina, at home; 8, Navy, in Annapolis; 11, Washington and Lee, in Lexington; 15, Maryland, in College Park; 19, Virginia Military Institute, at home.

Eight-Year Partners Gone From Tarheels

Chapel Hill, N. C., Jan. 1.—Rufus Hackney and Henry Satterfield, brilliant Tarheel forwards, played their eighth season together last year and graduated, leaving the Tarheels without a veteran forward. Neiman, Dameron, Cleland, Slater and Hutchinson are looking best for the posts of the graduated stars.

North Central Beats Rocky Mountaineers

Denver, Jan. 1 (A.P.).—The invaders from North Central Football Conference outclassed the Rocky Mountaineers today, 13 to 6, in one of the fastest games ever played here. The teams were all-star aggregations from their respective conferences and met in a charity New Year Day game, which was an innovation for Denver, and drew a capacity crowd to the Denver University Stadium.

Midwest Stars Beat Southwesterners

Ownby Stadium, Dallas, Tex., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Gridiron Stars of the Midwest, a husky, hard-driving group, proved superior to the Southwest All-Stars in a wild-scoring battle here today, 25 to 12.

More than 15,000 excited fans saw the big Midwest Eleven come back to batter across three touchdowns and sew up the decision after the Southwest had unloosed a sharp passing attack to tie the count, 6 to 6, at the half. There was never much doubt of the outcome once the invaders opened up with their power plays in the second period. Pest Welch, their All-American quarter back, failed to score a touchdown, but he battered the lighter Southwest line to bits.

The Midwest turned to the air, the very department at which their opponents were supposed to excel, to score two touchdowns in the third period and take an unpassable lead.

UTILITIES RATE CUT IN ARLINGTON URGED

Equal Charge for Gas and Light All Over County Is Wanted.

ZONING HEARING IS DUE

ARLINGTON COUNTY,
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

Declaring both gas and electric light rates in Arlington County unreasonable, Harry C. Safell last night stated that the time has come when some consideration should be given to such questions by the County Board of Supervisors.

"Today," he said, "we have in the county two separate rates for electric light service: A Washington company which came into the county many years ago which carries its service to Fort Myer Heights and still operates at Washington rates, and the Virginia Public Service Corporation which serves all other sections of the county at an exorbitant rate.

"The County Board of Supervisors has never taken any steps toward having the service of the Washington company, with its reduced rate, extended in the county, neither has it asked the Washington Gas Light Co., which owns the Rosslyn Gas Light Co., which serves the county, to reduce its rates.

"The Legislature of Virginia convenes January 8, and every taxpayer and resident of Arlington County should make his wishes known to our representatives so that a bill will be passed early in the session which will permit Arlington County to vote on a change of the form of government which will be of the most benefit to the majority.

"There is no reason why Arlington County should not have the same form of government of any city in the State, at the same time receiving State aid for schools and roads under the existing amendment to the constitution.

"Arlington County is the neck of the bottle through which all traffic North and South must pass on the seaboard, and it is unreasonable to expect the county to provide highways to take care of this ever-increasing traffic alone without State aid."

In conclusion, Saffell stated: "Arlington County will receive $500,000 from the City of Alexandria for the recent territory which she gained by annexation between now and July 1 of this year. This money should be spent in public improvements. Every dollar spent should buy a dollar's worth of improvement."

The Arlington County Zoning Commission will hold its final public hearing on the zoning ordinance as now drafted tomorrow night in the auditorium of the Washington Lee High School prior to submitting it to the county board of supervisors for its final adoption.

The commission has for the last eight months been at work on the zoning of the county. It has already held eight public hearings in an effort to meet the will of the citizens as far as it is possible and the meeting announced for tomorrow night will be the last.

Satisfactory adjustments with the Alexandria School Board, allowing the use of the textbooks in the George Mason High School and the Mount Vernon Elementary School by charging a reasonable rental fee until the end of the year, have been completed, announced County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp last night.

With the reopening of the schools today 30 pupils from the George Mason High School will enter the Washington Lee High School.

Arrangements have been made by the county school board to assist the pupils in reaching the high school by the use of special bus service to be furnished by the Washington, Virginia & Maryland Coach Co.

Pupils from the Mount Vernon elementary school will attend either the Nellie Custis school at Aurora Hills or the Hume school on Mount Vernon avenue.

J. M. Hutchinson, 87 years old, one of Fairfax County's oldest residents and one of the few remaining survivors of the famous Mosby raiders of Civil War days, with his wife, celebrated the coming of the New Year yesterday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Lawrence Michael in Lyon Park, Arlington County.

Mr. Hutchinson was born in Loudon County in 1842. At the age of 18 he joined the Eighth Virginia Infantry, Company G, under Capt. James Thrift. In two years he will celebrate his fiftieth wedding anniversary.

The Clarendon Baptist Church will hold its annual business meeting and election of church officers tonight in the church at 8 o'clock.

The guild of St. George's Episcopal Church will elect its officers for the new year at its meeting this afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. W. C. Welburn, at Ballston.

The board of directors of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce will meet this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in the board rooms in the Rees Building at Clarendon.

The directors will at this meeting receive the recommendations of the executive committee relative to the election of a secretary-stenographer. It is understood that the office will be filled at this meeting.

The Parent-Teacher Association of the Matthew Fountaine Maury School at Clarendon will hold its monthly meeting tonight at the school house at 8 o'clock. All patrons are asked to attend, as plans for the activities of the association during the remainder of the school year will be discussed.

The monthly meeting of the auxiliary of the Scout Mothers of Troop No. 101 of Ballston will be held this afternoon at the home of Mrs. Strickler at Mulhall Station. Officers for the new year will be elected.

Winchester Treasurer, William T. Barr, Quits

Special to The Washington Post.

Winchester, Va., Jan. 1.—William T. Barr retired at midnight last night as treasurer of the City of Winchester, after sixteen years' continuous service, during which time he has seen the revenues and disbursements of the city more than double themselves. He left the office with a substantial working balance in the treasury.

Mr. Barr was succeeded today as treasurer by W. A. Baker, who last night resigned as president of the Common Council, in which he has served as a member fourteen years, without missing a regular or special meeting. Mr. Baker was recently elected by the voters to a four-year term. His successor as a councilman has not been chosen.

JURY IS DISMISSED IN STUDENT KILLING

Group Deadlocked, 10 to 2, on Fate of Abingdon City Policeman.

DELIBERATED 18 HOURS

Abingdon, Va., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—After deliberating eighteen hours without reaching a verdict, a jury in Washington County Circuit Court, considering the fate of James McReynolds, Abingdon city policeman, charged with slaying J. W. Kendrick, 16, on the night of May 6, was dismissed at noon today, hopelessly deadlocked.

It was learned that ten jurors stood for conviction with punishment at one year in prison and a fine of $500, and that two were adamant for acquittal.

McReynolds was indicted jointly with W. D. Worley and J. W. Crowe, deputy sheriffs. Kendrick was killed when officers fired at the car in which he was riding with two companions. Worley's trial resulted in his being fined $400 for involuntary manslaughter. Crowe was acquitted.

The three officers maintained they had reason to believe that Paul Phelps, driver of the car, was transporting whisky and that they were justified in shooting, in view of Phelps' previously having served a jail sentence on a whisky conviction and of Virginia statutes which make the second major dry-law violation punishable as a felony.

Judge A. C. Buchanan, presiding, ordered the case continued until the January term of court, but Commonwealth's Attorney Fred C. Parks said it was probable the second trial would not be held until March.

Encampment Sites For Guard Listed

Announcements Made for All Virginia Units, Except Two Companies.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Definite dates and places of encampment for all units of the Virginia National Guard, except two which remain tentative, were announced today by Adjt. Gen. W. W. Sale.

Encampment headquarters for the 29th Division staff, consisting of 12 officers, and the Twenty-ninth Signal Company, of Norfolk, with 6 officers and 75 enlisted men, will not be confirmed until early in January. The other encampment dates follow:

Danville Tank Company, 5 officers and 60 enlisted men, at Camp George C. Meade, Md., June 8-22.

State Staff Corps and departments and the Ninety-first Infantry Brigade, 133 officers and 1,840 enlisted men, at Virginia Beach, August 3-17.

One Hundred and Eleventh Field Artillery, 50 officers and 550 men, at Tobyhanna, Pa., July 5-19.

Two Hundred and Forty-sixth Coast Artillery, 36 officers and 540 enlisted men, at Fort Monroe, August 10-24.

One Hundred and Fourth Medical Regiment, composed of the Ambulance Company, 2 officers and 45 men, of Norfolk, and the Hospital Company, 3 officers and 60 enlisted men, of Danville, at Carlisle Barracks, Pa., July 28-August 9.

Bullet Found Embedded Near Governor's Chair

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—A 32-caliber bullet, which had ranged through a window pane and screen, was found today embedded in the floor in Gov. John C. Richards' office 5 feet from his office chair.

Detectives summoned said they presumed the ball was fired by New Year celebrants, but began an investigation. It was the second time during the holiday season that a bullet has struck quarters of the chief executive. Christmas night a .38-caliber bullet tore through a wire screen over a door to the executive mansion. It dropped to the floor and did not enter the home.

New Creek Residence Is Destroyed by Fire

Special to The Washington Post.

Keyser, W. Va., Jan. 1.—A house at New Creek, near Keyser, owned by Miss Elsie Wageley and occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cunningham, was destroyed by fire early yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Cunningham were forced to leave through an upstairs window.

A high wind prevailed, and when the Keyser Fire Department responded the fire was beyond control. Furniture belonging to Miss Wageley, stored in the house, was also destroyed.

Youth Is Indicted In Death of Girl

Body Was Found, Strangled, in Mountains After His Arrest.

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Buren Harman, 20, of Floyd County, was indicted by a Roanoke County Circuit Court grand jury today on a charge of murder in connection with the death of Freeda Bolt, 18, of Willis, whose body was found on Bent Mountain, Roanoke County, the night of December 18.

The girl, according to authorities, was strangled to death.

Harman was arrested December 13, the day of the girl's disappearance from her boarding house at Willis and placed in the Floyd County Jail. Officers said he told them where the body could be found.

Virginia State Department Is Second Only to That of Massachusetts.

CHILD CARE SPECIALTY

Richmond, Va., Jan. 2 (A.P.).—Twenty years of progress in State-directed public welfare work, in many phases of which it has accomplished pioneer objects, has given Virginia a high position among all the States of the Union until only one—Massachusetts—has a larger number of children directly in its custody.

When the department of public welfare began to function in Virginia juvenile delinquents were confined with hardened criminals. They had no recreational life, no schooling and no regular religious services.

In 1929 the children's bureau of the department had under its care over 3,000 children, some being constantly discharged with others coming at the rate of 700 a year. A juvenile court system is operating. Children have separate hearings, probation service for them has been developed, and they are not allowed to remain in almshouses or jails.

Established in 1914.

The State department, as a child-caring agency, was first recognized as such in 1914, and from that time on it has continued to take direct charge of children.

As early as 1912 the department had been taking children, and even before that a limited number had been sent to orphanages, but there were hundreds in jails and poorhouses.

Under the present plan, according to Mrs. Emily W. Dinwiddie, director of the Bureau of Child Welfare, when a child is committed to the bureau he is brought to Richmond and placed in a detention home or in one of thirty-odd boarding homes of the bureau in or near Richmond.

He is given a careful physical and mental examination, his physical defects are corrected where possible, he is provided with clothing, and his difficulties are studied and a plan mapped out for his future.

The more delinquent children who need stricter discipline are sent to State industrial schools, but admission to these is through the children's bureau alone.

The more promising boys and girls are placed in homes.

Albemarle Cupid Busy During 1929

Licenses to Marry Issued to 231 Couples in Past Twelve Months.

Special to The Washington Post.

Charlottesville, Va., Jan. 1.—Cupid was busy in Albemarle County in 1929. During the twelve months just ended marriage licenses were issued in the county clerk's office to 231 couples—162 white and 69 colored—an increase of 34 over the previous year's total. The ages of the contracting parties ranged from 15 to 60 years.

Licenses were granted to 25 widowers and to 13 widows. The number of divorced persons trying a second venture was five, four males and one female. Four brides were only 15 years old, while ten were just "sweet 16." One man, aged 60, took a bride of 28, while another, who gave his age as 56, married a girl of only 16 years.

The youngest couples married during the year were Hugh Thomas, 22 and Martha Garland, 15, both of Esmont; Frank J. Tate, 21, and Edna F. Gibson, 15, both of Crozet; Kemper Shiflett, 22, of Mission Home, and Cora Frazier, 15, of Free Union; Woodside Munday, 22, and Mary Birckhead, 15, both of Rio.

FIFTH U. S. DISTRICT HAS BUSINESS LOSS

Review Says Reserve Note Circulation Gained in December.

COTTON PRICE DECLINES

Richmond, Va., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—There was a decrease in the volume of seasonal business during November and early December in the Fifth Federal Reserve District, but it was not regarded as serious in the monthly review of William W. Hoxton, chairman and Federal reserve agent.

"Liquidation of agricultural loans proceeded seasonally," said the report, "but perhaps at a somewhat slower rate than in most years. Member banks reduced their rediscounts at the Reserve Bank, although the reduction from country banks was not in proportion to the reduction of rediscounts of the city institutions.

"Federal reserve note circulation rose during the past month, to meet the demand for cash needed for crop marketing and the holiday trade. Time deposits and other savings deposits declined last month, as usually occurs at that season of the year, but demand deposits in reporting member banks increased somewhat.

Debits to Accounts Decline.

"Debits to individual accounts during the four weeks ended December 11 were less than debits during the preceding four weeks, an unusual development, and in addition were lower than during the corresponding four weeks of 1928 in a majority of the reporting cities and in the total for the district. This may be accounted for, at least in part, by the lessened activity in security dealings.

"Business failures in the Fifth District in November were less numerous and liabilities were 78 per cent lower than in November, 1928, a much more favorable showing than the national comparison, which revealed liabilities 28 per cent greater in November, 1929, than in November, 1928.

"Labor is only moderately employed and, on the whole, the outlook for the next few months appears more doubtful than in earlier months this year. Daily production of bituminous coal in November was less than in November, 1928, and total production of last month declined rather more than seasonal average in comparison with the October output.

Textile Mills Cut Output.

"Textile mills operated less extensively than in November, 1928, and there was some curtailment of work to four days a week, but the recession in operations was less marked than the average for the Nation. Retail trade in department stores in the Fifth District was better than in November, 1928, in the largest cities, but on the whole was poorer in the smaller cities and towns. Wholesale trade in November compared favorably with that of November a year ago in every line reported upon.

"Crop returns were quite spotted, but considering the District as a whole, production of most crops was up to the production of 1928. Prices for cotton, the leading money crop, are much lower this year than in 1928, and returns to the growers will be considerably below the returns last year. Tobacco prices have averaged somewhat lower this year than last, but increased production this year probably about balanced the lower prices."

Boy of 9 Committed In Playmate's Death

Roanoke, Va., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—A 9-year-old boy today was under commitment to the State Board of Public Welfare as the result of Juvenile Court action on charges growing out of the death of a 5-year-old playmate, Norma Foutz, who died of burns in a local hospital on December 17.

It was charged that the boy tossed a lighted piece of paper against the child's clothing, which caused the fire resulting in her death two days later.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA was sipping a cocktail. "Don't be alarmed," she said, offering me one, "this is just some nonalcoholic fruit——"

"Nonalcoholic fruit? Is there any other kind?"

"You've heard of applejack, haven't you? Where do you think that comes from, peaches?"

That proved her point. There are alcoholic fruits. As a matter of fact, the only fruit I know of that's strictly nonalcoholic is watermelon.

"Is there any watermelon juice in that cocktail?

* * * *

"OF course not—that would ruin it."

"What's in it?"

"Let's see," she mused, cocking her head. "There's a dash of grape juice, a spray of pineapple, the rind of a lime, a piece of peach, the top of an apricot, and——"

"Don't go any further," I pleaded, "you're breaking my heart!"

"Won't you have some?" she urged.

"Not I. Cocktails never did appeal to me. What I'd like to have is an old-fashioned ice cream soda——"

Luella had a happy thought. She got out one of the Delmonico glasses, dipped the edge of it for about half an inch in powdered sugar.

"Taste this," she said, "the sugar improves it 100 per cent."

"If sugar improves it more than one-half of 1 per cent," I told her, knowing my constitutional law, "it won't be nonalcoholic. You know what sugar does——"

"SUGAR?"

"Certainly! It's the base of all alcoholic content. Without sugar there'd be no fermentation——"

"Good heavens!" said Luella, "I've been experimenting with this cocktail for the Ladies' Aid——"

"They'll get a lot of aid out-a that if you let it stand long enough——"

"You don't get the idea," she flashed. "The Ladies' Aid is my temperance society."

"A temperance society? And you're planning to serve cocktails?"

"These are not really cocktails—just fruit——"

* * * *

"I WOULDN'T tempt 'em. You know what fruit did in the Garden of Eden. And those glasses! Old man Delmonico would turn over in his grave——"

"Oh, dear," she sighed, "whattum I gonna do?"

"If they must drink," I suggested, "why not give 'em vegetable cocktails?"

"That solves the problem," she said, concocting an entirely different recipe. "No one can object to tomato juice."

And liquid spinach looks like cream de menthe, after a fashion.

MASONS DEDICATE SHRINE IN ATLANTA

$2,500,000 Mosque Opened by Imperial Potentate in Brilliant Rites.

PLEA MADE FOR PEACE

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—The new $2,500,000 Mosque of the Atlanta Shrine Temple was dedicated today at a brilliant ceremony, conducted by Leo V. Youngworth, of Los Angeles, Imperial Potentate, and witnessed by nearly 1,000 shriners from various cities of the South.

The Imperial Potentate, addressing a throng at the new mosque on Peachtree street, told his hearers that they "must not forget the great power we have in molding public sentiment in favor of peace—the greatest hope of today." He declared that "unless something can be done at the forthcoming disarmament meeting in London," that the nations of the world would engage in a race for heavy armaments "similar to the one that brought on the World War."

Ceremonies at the temple, at which 56 candidates were admitted to the Shrine Temple here, followed a colorful parade of Shriners through the business section of Atlanta. Shrine Templers from Knoxville, Tenn.; Montgomery, Ala.; Atlanta, Charleston, S. C., and Greenville, S. C., were represented in the parade.

After the ceremonies at the temple, a buffet luncheon was served in the banquet hall at the mosque. Immediately afterward, the various bands and uniformed groups escorted the Imperial Potentate to Grant Field, where a football game was played for benefit of Shrine hospitals in the South. With the Imperial Potentate were Past Imperial Potentates D. W. Crossland, of Montgomery, Ala., and Conrad V. Dykeman, of Brooklyn, N. Y.; Imperial Secretary James H. Price, of Richmond, Va., and other Shrine dignitaries.

Mystery Is Seen In Traffic Death

Police Investigate Facts Surrounding Killing of Youth, 13.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 1 (A.P.).—Henrico police early tonight still considered the death of Harry Morris, 13, whose body was found at noon by the roadside at Bottoms Bridge, about 10 miles from Richmond, a mystery. Possibility that the boy had been killed by a hit-and-run driver was the only solution they advanced.

A hub cap, found near the spot where the boy's body lay undiscovered for several hours, was the only clew to the cause of the tragedy.

The body was found by a traveler, and identified by parents of the boy, who had become alarmed at his failure to return from a New Year's Eve dance.

The automobile of Morris' parents, in which the boy and O. B. Harris, 26, had gone to the dance, was found first. It had beeen sideswiped in a collision with an automobile driven by L. K. Sims, Fort Eustis soldier. Witnesses said no one was hurt, and the automobiles were only slightly damaged. Harris told authorities he thought that passengers in both cars, including Morris, had been brought to Richmond in other automobiles.

Police learned from witnesses, however, that hile the crowd was gathered at the scene of the accident a speeding car passed, but no one noticed an accident.

1930 LABOR MARKET WILL BE GOOD HERE

Federal Bureau Forecast Is Indicative of Abundant Supply and Demand.

VIRGINIAS WILL BE BUSY

Increased industrial activities, together with the expanded Government construction program, portend favorable employment conditions in the District of Columbia and adjoining States during 1930, Francis I. Jones, director general of the United States Employment Service, asserts in his annual forecast of labor prospects for the Nation.

The employment outlook for the District is fairly satisfactory, although it is not believed the volume of work in 1930 will greatly exceed that of 1929, Jones reports.

The Federal building program will offer employment to a large number of both skilled and unskilled laborers, of whom a plentiful supply exists, his report states, and industrial establishments in Washington also should continue to engage their usual forces on full-time schedules.

Since the highway department has more than $3,483,000 available for road and street improvement in the District, and the private building program will involve an expenditure of close to $40,000,000, the employment service anticipates no shortage of employment for any class of workers here during the year.

In Maryland, the 1930 industrial employment outlook is regarded as bright. "Practically all localities anticipate sufficient employment for resident skilled workers, and there may be some increase in the demand for unskilled help," the forecast states. "Operations have recently been started in new manufacturing establishments in a number of cities, and several towns have factories in course of erection, which, when completed, will create a demand for additional factory workers. All the major industries also expect to keep their usual forces engaged, with some plant expansion planned."

In addition to these employment sources, the State will have approximately $13,000,000 for highway construction, and large numbers of men will be engaged on various projects, the report asserts. Consequently, the opinion is generally expressed that there will be sufficient labor available for all requirements, even though reports indicate that there will be an increase in the demand.

With improvement expected in the textile situation, active building programs planned, and industrial operations generally favorable, the employment outlook for both skilled and unskilled labor in Virginia is considered to be bright.

Because of the large building programs, it is believed there will be a greater demand for building-trades men than prevailed in 1929, the report avers, adding that work on the airport at Norfolk and proposed adjacent airplane plants will provide work for a large number of men.

Richmond is expected to be the center for much employment. In addition to the $1,000,000 cigarette factory on which work already has begun, the city itself will offer work for many laborers. Preliminary work already has been started on a $1,500,000 bridge in that city, and the total expenditures for municipal maintenance and improvements will total $9,500,000, an increase of $1,700,000 over 1929.

An optimistic outlook prevails in practically all communities concerning the 1930 industrial and employment situation in West Virginia, the report states, and from all indications there will be some increase in the volume of building and municipal improvements.

The State will spend $3,000,000 for road maintenance, and the commission expects to have available for new contracts the proceeds of the sale of $10,000,000 of State road bonds, and approximately $796,000 of Federal aid.

Agricultural conditions in these States are expected to remain practically unchanged. There may be, however, a slight increase in truck farming in Virginia, and in tobacco acreage in West Virginia.

Partially Burned Body Discovered in Woods

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., Jan. 1.—The body of Patrick Yantz, about 60 years old, was found partially burned in the woods this afternoon near Hazen, within 200 feet of the Mason and Dixon Line. Yantz, who lived in the community all his life and worked for many farmers, was unmarried and had no permanent abode or near relative, as far as is known with the exception of a brother who lived much as he did, and whose whereabouts are unknown.

Yantz had been seen late yesterday afternoon. The authorities found he had kindled a fire near a stump, beside which he had evidently lain when his clothing caught. His body lay about twenty feet from the fire. He had torn off his shirt, it is thought death came from inhaling fire and exposure. His body was brought to this city.

ALEXANDRIA POLICE ARREST 3,802 IN 1929

INVALID WOMAN RESCUED

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU,
312 ½ Washington St., Alexandria, Va.,
Phone Alexandria 523.

The report states that property valued at $21,173.46 was reported stolen, of which $18,453.71 was recovered during the year. There were 353 gallons of liquor seized, and 621 gallons destroyed, the excess being accounted for by the fact that some was left over from the year before. Twelve automobiles were seized in connection with violations of the dry laws.

Police headquarters furnished lodging to 1,246 persons, of whom 941 were white and 499 colored. The police answered 1,251 complaints, and 253 felony cases were investigated.

Automobile accidents within the city limits cost two lives in 1929, the first being Courtland Harrison, killed as the result of a motorcycle accident in the 300 block South Patrick street, and Arthus Purvis, killed November 23, at Prince and Henry streets. There were 429 automobile accidents reported inside the city limits and 38 in the outlying districts, which were investigated by the police. There were 80 persons injured within the city and 38 outside. Three hundred and seventy-seven of the accident cases were settled out of court.

The principal items in the report, in addition to the above, were: Housebreaking, 26, of which 22 were cleared up; grand larcency, 35, with 23 cleared up; petit larceny 162, and 74 cleared up; automobiles stolen in the city 24, with 22 recovered; out-of-town cars reported stolen and recovered by the local police, 32.

In December there were 258 arrests, or 38 less than in November. The three leading offenses were: Drunk, 66; violation of prohibition law, 39; traffic violations, 34.

Mrs. George West, invalid, wife of George West, sr., of East Lloyd avenue, Potomac, was rescued from her burning home Tuesday night by Charles Beck, who carried her from the burning building. She was taken to the home of A. V. Brooks, a neighbor.

The building caught fire from a defective flue, and was partially burned. The loss was placed at $2,000, partially covered by insurance. The West family lost practically all their personal effects. Engine Company, No. 5, and Potomac Company, No. 2, responded to the alarm.

Oriental Lodge, No. 6, Knights of Pythias, elected the following officers: H. L. Darnell, chancellor commander; J. C. Morgan, vice chancellor; W. W. Clements, master of wardrobe; E. R. Norris, keeper of records and seal; Charles R. Herbert, prelate; B. H. Cook, maste of finance; H. E. Arnold, master at arms; George W. Bonts, master of exchequer; Robert Hancock, inside guard, and R. The Railroad Clerk's Association of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac Railroad, will give their fifth annual banquet at the George Mason Hotel the night of January 22, with covers for 250 persons, including most of the officials of the railroad company. An elaborate program of entertainment is being prepared by the committee in charge, and several speeches will be made by officials of the company and others.

John Evans, of Four Mile Run, reported to the police yesterday that James Cook narrowly escaped injury when a bullet from a .22 caliber rifle crashed through the glass window of an electric car at Temple Station. Evans was unable to say who fired the shot, but it was supposed to have been fired by boys at target practice.

Hazel E. Reamy, 4-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey D. Reamy, of 212 South Henry street, was found dead in bed yesterday morning by her mother. Sergt. George Everly investigated and summoned Dr. T. Marshall Jones, city coroner, who issued a certificate of death from natural causes.

William H. Sutton, 71 years old, died yesterday at his home, 326 South Washington street, after a brief illness. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hattie Virginia Sutton, and seven children: Millard R., Hiram H., Clarence W. and Raymond A. Sutton; Mrs. Joseph Rodgers, of this city; Mrs. William K. ## Dry Officer, Killer Of Youth, Pardoned

Byrd Frees Virginian, Who Shot Boy, 17, During Liquor Chase.

Special to The Washington Post.

Staunton, Va., Jan. 1.—A. Robert Dickson, former State prohibition officer, convicted of shooting to death Willard Dodge Monroe, 17, about a year ago, and sentenced to six months in the penitentiary and a fine of $500, has been granted a conditional pardon by Gov. Harry F. Byrd. Dickson has returned to his home in this county. He had served a majority of his time.

Monroe was driver of an automobile that Dickson was chasing, suspecting that it contained whisky. The chase lasted for several miles, and Dickson fired his pistol three or four times. The last bullet crashed through the back of the automobile and struck Monroe behind the left ear, killing him instantly. Three gallons and a half of liquor was found in the machine.

Dickson's defense was that he was firing at the tires of the machine, and not at Monroe.
